Only Second Bullet Fatal To Kennedy, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy might have survived the first bullet to strike him in the Dallas assassination, a source familiar with autopsy findings reports; it was the second bullet which proved fatal.

This source said Tuesday night the first bullet fired by Kennedy's assassin struck the President in the back and did not damage any vital organs. He said it was not likely to have caused death.

This account of Kennedy's wounds differed sharply from earlier reports provided by physicians who ministered to the President shortly after he was shot Nov. 22.

Doctors, who attended Kennedy in the emergency room at Parkland Hospital in Dallas found two wounds, one in the throat and one in the head. They expressed some uncertainty whether both were caused by the same bullet. But they said that if two bullets were involved, either wound could have been fatal.

Here is the new account of the wounds, as reported by a source fully acquainted with results of a post-mortem examination conducted at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital. The first shot struck Kennedy in the back, made what was described as a small, neat hole and penetrated two or three inches without damaging vital organs.

The bullet may even have entered Kennedy's back after first glancing off some part of the presidential limousine, since its penetration was not deep when compared with the damage done by the other shots fired by the assassin. This first bullet was said to have been the one that was recovered from the stretcher on which Kennedy was carried into the hospital.

The second bullet to strike Kennedy — the third bullet fired — left a large hole in the back of the President's head, destroyed considerable brain tissue and severely damaged the forehead. This wound caused instant death, although a faint spark of life may have remained for a few minutes in the heart and lungs.

This bullet, the source said, was recovered from the limousine.

The second shot fired by the assassin hit Gov. John B. Connally of Texas in the chest as he turned toward Kennedy after the first bullet hit the President. He was seated in front of Kennedy on a jump seat.

Since there was an interval of five or six seconds between Kennedy's first and second wounds, the new account leaves the implication that Kennedy might have survived — perhaps escaped serious injury — had he quickly thrown himself to the floor of his limousine after the first bullet struck.

It seems apparent, however, that the first wound was so painful and startling that Kennedy was unable to react immediately except to throw his hands in front of him. Assuming the first wound was not fatal, Kennedy's life might also have been saved had someone shielded him or knocked him to the floor of the car in the interval before he was struck in the head.

Secret Service agents are trained to react in such a fashion, but none was close enough to the President to intervene.

LBJ Protege Is Target Of Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators said today they are trying to ferret out where Robert G. Baker got the thousands of dollars in cash a witness testified he kept in his Senate office.

To help them, President Johnson signed an executive order permitting the Rules Committee, which is carrying on the inquiry, to examine the tax files of Baker, Johnson's protege when the President was Senate Democratic leader.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said he regarded the testimony about the money as "the big point" at the committee's first public hearings Tuesday in its investigation of Baker's business dealings and allegations of conflict of interest.

Baker, 35, resigned Oct. 7 from his $19,600 post as secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority after questions were raised about whether his outside interests conflicted with his official duties or involved other improprieties.

The testimony that Baker kept large amounts of cash in his office came from Mrs. Gertrude C. Novak, a trim, blonde widow of a contractor who was Baker's partner in the building of the Carousel Motel at Ocean City, Md.

Dixie Prefers Johnson

NEW YORK (AP)—The latest Gallup poll indicates that the Deep South prefers President Lyndon B. Johnson over GOP Sen. Barry Goldwater in the 1964 presidential election. The poll found 78 percent favoring the president while 19 percent liked Goldwater. The balance was undecided.

Christmas mailings by the beginning of this week averaged 5 per cent below the predicted rate.

The biggest lag was in letter mail, including Christmas cards. So far, about 6.5 billion pieces of mail have moved through the system since the month began.

Meanwhile, the department reported the prospect of record sales for its 1963 Christmas 5-cent stamp, depicting the national Christmas tree and the White House. More than 2 billion are being printed.

U.N. Assembly Ends Its 18th General Parley

Meeting Marked By Cold War Lull, Segregation Raps

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly ended its 18th session Tuesday night, a three-month meeting marked by a new lull in the cold war and a new peak in African attacks on segregation and colonialism.

The session opened with delegates heartened by the atmosphere of East-West harmony and ended with many apprehensive over what effect President John F. Kennedy's assassination might have on the world.

This anxiety was eased somewhat by President Johnson's assurance to the assembly Tuesday that he would carry on Kennedy's international policies.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko hailed Johnson's speech as "a positive approach to world problems."

The "spirit of Moscow," which set the harmonious tone of debate on disarmament, outer space and other East-West issues, resulted in a number of unanimous votes. However, none of the decisions could be described as far-reaching.

On the broad question of general disarmament no advances were made, but the ticklish problem was turned over to the Geneva negotiators with the blessings of East and West.

Some strides were made toward cooperation in outer space between the Soviet Union and the West, and the two sides moved a step closer to a total ban on nuclear weapon tests.

There were some discordant notes. The Soviet Union and the Western powers clashed over West Germany. The West lost on a number of colonial and racial issues marked by an all-out African assault against both South Africa and Portugal.

The assembly voted overwhelmingly for a worldwide oil embargo against South Africa, despite opposition by the United States, Britain and France.

In a final thrust at white supremacy, the Africans rammed through the assembly Tuesday a call for Security Council investigation of segregation in South West Africa on the ground it threatened world peace.

Johnson Asks Farm Chiefs For Advice

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, moving from one national problem to another, sat down today with agricultural leaders in an effort to find agreement on ways to avert a sharp election-year drop in farm income.

Johnson, a rancher himself, summoned leaders of six national farm organizations to the White House to discuss a new government wheat program.

One is needed, says Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, if wheat farmers' incomes are not to tumble $600 million next year.

So far, the major farm organizations have been unable to agree on a plan.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has been holding out against government controls, while most of the others have endorsed production restrictions.

The organizations invited to send officials include the Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, National Farmers Union, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, National Farmers Organization and the Cooperative League of the U.S.A.

The administration wants early action this year on a wheat program, but has not yet announced what its proposals will be.

Growers voted in a referendum last May to reject a strict control plan advanced by the Kennedy Administration. As a consequence, wheat prices are expected to drop rather sharply unless Congress acts.

Snow Measures 2½ Inches Here

Flurries Forecast Through Tomorrow

The Pickaway County area was blanketed with 2½ inches of snow today with more flurries expected through tomorrow.

Early morning winds caused some drifting, but none of any reported consequence. All street and highway departments were on the job making every effort to keep major highways and intersections free of ice and snow.

State Highway officials reported that all primary roads including Routes 22, 23 and 56 were "in good shape" but secondary highways were snow-covered in spots.

Some county roads were becoming treacherous due to drifting snow according to a noon report. Motorists were advised to drive with caution.

The noon forecast today calls for scattered snow flurries to-day, tonight and tomorrow with winds up to 20 miles per hour. Low temperature for tonight and early morning has been set at five degrees below zero to five above with a high of 10-15 tomorrow.

Rail Accident Damage Is High

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Damage that may mount into the thousands of dollars was caused today in a derailment of an Erie-Lackawanna Railroad freight train four miles west of here. No one was hurt.

Fourteen cars of a 50-car freight, all the cars carrying trucks "piggy back", left the tracks and overturned.

Quarters of pork in refrigeration trucks were spread over a wide area, along with thousands of unmailed magazines being shipped to mailing points. There was no actual mail being carried, contrary to first reports, just the magazines already bagged in mail sacks.

SIX CHILDREN DIE IN HOME FIRE — Six of 25 children who died in fires across the nation within 24 hours perished in this blaze at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Harrigan in Portland, Maine. This fire was started by an exploding space heater. Harrigan and his wife saved four other children. Others killed: five in Maitland, Fla.; four, Jasper Ark.; three, Lexington, Ky.; three, Annapolis, Md.; two, Port Washington, Wis., and two in Chillicothe, Mo.

Proposed Sewer District Studied

The creation of a sewer district to serve a proposed building development south of Circleville moved a step closer to reality yesterday during a meeting conducted by county officials and representatives of the developing firm.

Initial talks concerning the project were held Dec. 4 in the Board of County Commissioners' office. Yesterday's session, involving Commissioners Clyde Michel, Lloyd Mevin and Wayne Hines, County Prosecutor Robert Huffer, County Engineer Henry McCrady and Miller Development Co. representatives Paul Dumond and H. N. Stevenson, centered on an advanced projection of the developing firm's proposal.

The initial objective of the Miller firm, a subsidiary of South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative, is to gain proper and legal establishment of the sewer district. The area concerned, about 1½ miles south of Circleville, encloses about 318 acres. Approximately 102 acres of this land is owned by the Wacker Realty Co. of Lancaster and the rest by the Miller firm. The two companies are jointly seeking establishment of the sewer district.

Present plans call for creation of the district and the eventual construction of a sewage treatment plant that would initially service a 50-unit motel, a service station and 48 homes proposed for the area.

CONSTRUCTION of the motel has been scheduled to start in January. It will be located on the west side of Route 23 on Wacker land, while the homes are to be constructed on the east side on land owned by Miller Development.

Huffer informed the Miller representatives that it will be necessary for the firm to prepare and submit a formal letter of request for creation of the sewer district. The next step will be for the Board of Commissioners to adopt necessary legislation for establishment.

Huffer said additional legislation could be handled in a step-by-step manner. This he touched some cigarettes back of a counter. Russell himself suffered a wound from the pistol in 1960. Police said this caused him to remove the pistol trap but he set the shotgun after another burglary of the store, in suburban Everman.

The store's butcher, J.E. Riley, 61, said Russell obviously forgot about the 12-gauge shotgun. He was taking a box of trash outside.

"I guess I'll regret this for a long time," Russell said after the first man was killed in his store. Repeated burglaries led him to replace the trap, however.

Russell mounted the shotgun atop a storage area and behind a wallboard partition in the meat market. A spring was attached to the trigger and to a lead weight balanced on one edge of the meat vault.

A string tied to the screen door caused the weight to fall as the door was opened, pulling the trigger.

Khrushchev Is Included

But Chief Wants Talks 'Fruitful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today he is willing to meet with any world leaders — obviously including Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev — any time he believes such conferences would be "fruitful and productive."

Johnson was asked at a news conference to discuss his attitude toward a possible early meeting with Khrushchev. He replied with the statement of willingness to engage in promising talks — a number of which he already has arranged with leaders of West Germany, Britain, Italy, Canada and Mexico.

Reporters were summoned to Johnson's office without notice for the news conference. During the half-hour session, the President also covered these major points:

—Thomas Mann, the new assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, will also serve as a special assistant to Johnson. The President said Mann would coordinate all Latin-American policy, and declared, "We expect to speak with one voice on all matters affecting this hemisphere."

—The Senate action Tuesday adding $500 million to the amount voted by the House for foreign aid was described by Johnson as "very constructive and very helpful." He expressed confidence that he could be satisfied with any appropriation that was the considered product of both houses of Congress.

—Johnson expects to fly to his Texas ranch with his family next Sunday evening, or early next Monday, to spend the Christmas holiday. The President said he "might even go hunting" on the ranch, and that he has a desire to "go into the hills and commune with myself."

—Johnson said he could not tell yet whether the federal budget he will send to Congress next month will top $100 billion, because many decisions have yet to be made. And he said the new budget will include money for "new programs to meet new situations." He said he would "not be content to sit in our rocking chair and enjoy the status quo."

—The President believes his visit to the United Nations Tuesday was "very productive... and created better understanding."

Johnson announced that Dr. Walter Heller, his chief economic adviser, had just told him that the national economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, was now passing the $600-billion mark. Johnson termed this "about as fine a Christmas present as could come to the American people."

The President said he hopes to propose new programs for a broad assault on poverty. And expressed hope Congress, next year, will consider a comprehensive farm program.

Discussing his attitude toward news conferences, Johnson said that one day he might hold an office session, the next day a televised news conference, an on a third day invite reporters to a "coffee hour" conference of the sort he held on Dec. 7 — his first meeting with newsmen.

Salary Increases Okayed for Water, Sewage Employees

Circleville Council, wrapping up its final scheduled meeting of 1963 last night, granted a pay raise to employees of the City Water and Sewage Departments and approved two other legislative measures.

The new salary scale was approved on a 6-0 vote, with solon Dudley Carpenter absent. The increase, for water and sewage employees, will become effective Jan. 1.

Raises range from $50 to $10 monthly for employees in both departments, with the majority of them in the $20 monthly category.

Office personnel, including the public utilities manager, the bookkeeper-cashier and assistant bookkeeper-cashier, are paid out of funds from both departments. Division of water and division of sewage employees receive salaries from their respective departments only.

THE NEW salary ordinance fixes the pay of Ervin Leist, utilities manager, at $9,000 yearly. The old scale was $8,400.

The bookkeeper-cashier will receive $4,320 yearly, compared to $4,080 under the old scale. The assistant bookkeeper-cashier will be paid $2,940 per year in contrast to the $2,820 previous rate.

Here are the adjustments on a yearly basis for division of water personnel, with the new scale listed first:

Customer service — meter reader, $4,320—$4,080; distribution maintenance foreman, $4,320 — $4,080; distribution maintenance (two men), $4,200 — $3,960; resident chief filter operator, $3,960 — $3,600; filter operators (two men), $4,080—$3,960.

Leist pointed out that the resident chief filter operator receives less pay than regular operators, but is provided living quarters at the waterworks.

Adjustments for division of sewage employees are, with the new scale listed first: Chief operator, $4,980—$4,740; operators (three men), $4,260—$4,020.

LEIST, addressing Council on behalf of his two departments, said the pay raises were recommended by the local Board of Public Utilities after considerable study and research. This included a comparison with salary rates of similar size communities.

The increases followed on the heels of pay raises granted at Council's last meeting to city firemen. City police receive December's cold and snowy weather showed no signs of a letup across broad areas in the eastern half of the nation today.

A storm dumped heavy snow in parts of the northern Midwest, including a record amount of nearly 15 inches in 24 hours in Muskegon, Mich. The snow covered areas from the Plains eastward across the upper Mississippi Valley into the Great Lakes region and the Ohio Valley.

Sub-zero cold and stiff winds stung much of the north central region. Temperatures dropped to more than 20 below zero in parts of South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota. Low marks included 25 below in Havre, Mont. and Aberdeen, S.D.

Conservative Defeated by Johnson Pal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Democrat J.J. (Jake) Pickle, personal friend of President Lyndon Johnson, won election as U. S. representative Tuesday in a campaign that many called the new President's first popularity test at the polls.

For Pickle, 49, it is his first elective job in more than two decades of political life. He succeeded Rep. Homer Thornberry, D-Tex., who has been appointed a federal judge.

With all but a few rural votes tabulated in the 10-county central Texas district, Pickle had 27,206 to 16,039 for Republican Jim Dobbs. Party affiliations did not appear on the ballot.

The outcome leaves the House balance of 257 Democrats and 178 Republicans unchanged. Texas, at one time considered solidly Democratic, now has a Republican senator and two of its 23 representatives are Republicans.

Dobbs, 38, is a former Church of Christ minister. He quit a job as Washington commentator for a nationwide conservative radio program (Life Line) to make the race.

Yule Mail Volume Dips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Christmas mail rush may fall short of the record volume predicted. Postal officials are convinced the death of President John F. Kennedy is the reason.

For the first half of December the mail volume was 2.5 per cent below that of the same period a year ago.

Unless the peak expected this week shows a significant spurt, the Post Office Department expects the 1963 Christmas mailings to reach but not surpass the 10 billion pieces handled in 1962.

"I can't imagine what else could have caused the lag," Asst. Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen told a reporter. "The President was assassinated Nov. 22, and we're convinced people just didn't feel like buying and addressing and mailing Christmas cards and packages for a while after that."

Every postal region except Chicago—center of the mail-order world—has fallen below expectations. Across the country,

Christmas mailings by the beginning of this week averaged 5 per cent below the predicted rate.

The biggest lag was in letter mail, including Christmas cards. So far, about 6.5 billion pieces of mail have moved through the system since the month began.

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Damage that may mount into the thousands of dollars was caused today in a derailment of an Erie-Lackawanna Railroad freight train four miles west of here. No one was hurt.

Fourteen cars of a 50-car freight, all the cars carrying trucks "piggy back", left the tracks and overturned.

Quarters of pork in refrigeration trucks were spread over a wide area, along with thousands of unmailed magazines being shipped to mailing points. There was no actual mail being carried, contrary to first reports, just the magazines already bagged in mail sacks.

Proposed Sewer District Studied

The creation of a sewer district to serve a proposed building development south of Circleville moved a step closer to reality yesterday during a meeting conducted by county officials and representatives of the developing firm.

Initial talks concerning the project were held Dec. 4 in the Board of County Commissioners' office. Yesterday's session, involving Commissioners Clyde Michel, Lloyd Melvin and Wayne Hines, County Prosecutor Robert Huffer, County Engineer Henry McCrady and Miller Development Co. representatives Paul Dumond and H. N. Stevenson, centered on an advanced projection of the developing firm's proposal.

The initial objective of the Miller firm, a subsidiary of South-Central Rural Electric Cooperative, is to gain proper and legal establishment of the sewer district. The area concerned, about 1½ miles south of Circleville, encloses about 318 acres. Approximately 102 acres of this land is owned by the Wacker Realty Co. of Lancaster and the rest by the Miller firm. The two companies are jointly seeking establishment of the sewer district.

Present plans call for creation of the district and the eventual construction of a sewage treatment plant that would initially service a 50-unit motel, a service station and 48 homes proposed for the area.

CONSTRUCTION of the motel has been scheduled to start in January. It will be located on the west side of Route 23 on Wacker land, while the homes are to be constructed on the east side on land owned by Miller Development.

Huffer informed the Miller representatives that it will be necessary for the firm to prepare and submit a formal letter of request for creation of the sewer district. The next step will be for the Board of Commissioners to adopt necessary legislation for establishment.

Huffer said additional legislation could be handled in a step-by-step manner. This would include official naming of the engineering firm that would plan the project.

Previous discussion indicated that the developing firm would bear the cost of establishing the sewer district and construction of the sewage plant. Further provisions note that control of the plant would revert to the county after approximately one year of satisfactory operation.

Stevenson and Dumond said the letter request for creation of the district probably will be submitted to the commission by Monday's regular meeting.

The commission was told that the Miller firm would provide for additional sewage plant units as required through future development of the area.

Notice to Thieves Reported Stolen

NEW YORK (AP) — After four unsolved burglaries in 16 months, residents of an apartment building posted this sign in the entrance hall:

"Notice to thieves: others have preceded you. All cameras, hi-fi systems, transistor radios, diamond rings, pearls, necklaces, as well as worthless and worthless jewelry, have been filched from these premises. There's nothing left to take."

The sign has been stolen.

Mistletoe Sales Still Holding Up

WILLIAMSON, Ga. (AP) — The mistletoe man of Pike County says sales indicate kissing under the mistletoe is about as popular now as it was 50 years ago.

But Yancey Madison Anderson, 78, finds it harder to harvest the parasitic sucker, which brings in between $200 and $300 every Christmas.

"I can't climb trees like I used to because of a heart attack about five years back," he said Tuesday. His mistletoe grows in the tops of 15 tall oak trees.

Khrushchev Is Included

But Chief Wants Talks 'Fruitful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today he is willing to meet with any world leaders — obviously including Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev — any time he believes such conferences would be "fruitful and productive."

Johnson was asked at a news conference to discuss his attitude toward a possible early meeting with Khrushchev. He replied with the statement of willingness to engage in promising talks — a number of which he already has arranged with leaders of West Germany, Britain, Italy, Canada and Mexico.

Reporters were summoned to Johnson's office without notice for the news conference. During the half-hour session, the President also covered these major points:

—Thomas Mann, the new assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, will also serve as a special assistant to Johnson. The President said Mann would coordinate all Latin-American policy, and declared, "We expect to speak with one voice on all matters affecting this hemisphere."

—The Senate action Tuesday adding $500 million to the amount voted by the House for foreign aid was described by Johnson as "very constructive and very helpful." He expressed confidence that he could be satisfied with any appropriation that was the considered product of both houses of Congress.

—Johnson expects to fly to his Texas ranch with his family next Sunday evening, or early next Monday, to spend the Christmas holiday. The President said he "might even go hunting" on the ranch, and that he has a desire to "go into the hills and commune with myself."

—Johnson said he could not tell yet whether the federal budget he will send to Congress next month will top $100 billion, because many decisions have yet to be made. And he said the new budget will include money for "new programs to meet new situations." He said he would "not be content to sit in our rocking chair and enjoy the status quo."

—The President believes his visit to the United Nations Tuesday was "very productive. . . . and created better understanding."

Johnson announced that Dr. Walter Heller, his chief economic adviser, had just told him that the national economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, was now passing the $600-billion mark. Johnson termed this "about as fine a Christmas present as could come to the American people."

The President said he hopes to propose new programs for a broad assault on poverty. And expressed hope Congress, next year, will consider a comprehensive farm program.

Discussing his attitude toward news conferences, Johnson said that one day he might hold an office session, the next day a televised news conference, on a third day invite reporters to a "coffee hour" conference of the sort he held on Dec. 7 — his first meeting with newsmen.

Grocer Dies in Own Trap

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—"I've killed myself!" moaned B.C. Russell, 63, after a shotgun rigged for burglars fired at him at the back door of his food store Tuesday.

He stumbled a front counter and died. The charge struck him in the chest.

A pistol mounted in the same fashion killed an ex-convict, 21, in 1959 as he started inside the store at night. A shotgun charge took the life of a 19-year-old prowler in 1961 when he touched some cigarettes back of a counter.

Russell himself suffered a wound from the pistol in 1960. Police said this caused him to remove the pistol trap but he set the shotgun after another burglary of the store, in suburban Everman.

The store's butcher, J.E. Riley, 61, said Russell obviously forgot about the 12-gauge shotgun. He was taking a box of trash outside.

"I guess I'll regret this for a long time," Russell said after the first man was killed in his store. Repeated burglaries led him to replace the trap, however.

Russell mounted the shotgun atop a storage area and behind a wallboard partition in the meat market. A spring was attached to the trigger and to a lead weight balanced on one edge of the meat vault.

A string tied to the screen door caused the weight to fall as the door was opened, pulling the trigger.

Yule Mail Volume Dips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Christmas mail rush may fall short of the record volume predicted. Postal officials are convinced the death of President John F. Kennedy is the reason.

For the first half of December the mail volume was 2.5 percent below that of the same period a year ago.

Unless the peak expected this week shows a significant spurt, the Post Office Department expects the 1963 Christmas mailings to reach but not surpass the 10 billion pieces handled in 1962.

"I can't imagine what else could have caused the lag," Asst. Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen told a reporter. "The President was assassinated Nov. 22, and we're convinced people just didn't feel like buying and addressing and mailing Christmas cards and packages for a while after that."

Every postal region except Chicago—center of the mail-order world—has fallen below expectations. Across the country,

Christmas mailings by the beginning of this week averaged 5 percent below the predicted rate.

The biggest lag was in letter mail, including Christmas cards. So far, about 6.5 billion pieces of mail have moved through the system since the month began. Meanwhile, the department reported the prospect of record sales for its 1963 Christmas 5-cent stamp, depicting the national Christmas tree and the White House. More than 2 billion are being printed.

Circleville, Ohio

Sewer Project Faces 2nd Suit

Several property owners have continued their protests and objections to assessments pertaining to the city's Sanitary Sewer District No. 2 by filing a "companion" suit to their initial petitions filed in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court in October.

Plaintiffs of the court action against the City of Circleville and its officers are Dale Ankrom, Mary and Otto F. Guenther, the White Development Co., Jack P. White, Goldie M. White, Phyllis Irene White, Kenneth R. White, Mabel M. Ice, Joseph C. and Frances R. Moats, Ruth M. George, Virginia B. Replogle, Charles H. and Sadie R. Radcliff, Tom A. Renick and Robert V. George.

City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins filed a demurrer against the original suit, claiming the plaintiffs could not be joined in one suit and that each taxpayer would have to file separately.

Plaintiffs of the suit filed yesterday are listed as "property owners" instead of "taxpayers" as in the original suit.

Judge William Ammer today granted a temporary restraining order to the property owners who seek court action to prevent the assessments from being placed on the tax rolls of the county. However, the assessments have not yet been certified by the County Auditor and would not have appeared on this year's taxes regardless of the temporary order. Bond was set at $1,000 by Judge Ammer.

The property owners in their petition, state that the city has "endeavored to illegally create Sanitary Sewer District No. 2" and that their protests concerning the district were ignored by the city in violation of a mandatory statute provision. Counsellors failed to grant the property owners a hearing and continued to proceed with adopting the ordinance calling for the construction of the sewer district, according to the petition.

The plaintiffs claim the sewer was constructed at a capacity in excess of what would be necessary to provide services within the district. They also claim that some property owners within the district already had adequate municipal owned sewer facilities available.

Their objections included the various methods of determining and calculating the assessments. They allege that some methods were in violation of an ordinance that was passed by city council on property that was to be benefited by the sanitary sewer.

The petition asks that the ordinance creating the sewer district be declared void as well as all subsequent legislation. The property owners petition the court to determine what portion of the sewer system's costs should be paid by the city and to assess the balance on the lots and lands within the district in proportion to the benefits derived by individual property owners.

Tom A. Renick, Emmitt L. Crist and the firm of Simkins and Young represent the property owners in the court action.

Judge William Ammer said today that he had voluntarily "stepped aside" from hearing the case if and when it goes to court.

Final 1963 Session

Councilmen Bid Farewell To Their Outgoing Members

A portion of last night's City Council meeting, the final session for 1963, was devoted to farewells to outgoing members and a quick review of the past legislative year.

Recognition from Council President Harold Clifton's chair was in order for outgoing solons Charles Kirkpatrick, Dr. Robert Smith and Dudley Carpenter. Kirkpatrick and Carpenter did not try for another term this year and Dr. Smith failed in his attempt for re-election.

Carpenter, now in Hawaii on vacation, bid his farewell to Council at the Dec. 3 meeting. Both Smith and Kirkpatrick expressed views hoping that Circleville will continue to grow and make progress in spite of opposition that can be anticipated.

The solons commented on the many pleasures they had experienced while working as members of the city's governing body and voiced thanks to fellow lawmakers for their spirited cooperation. President Clifton's response noted that the city had benefitted from the services of both men.

ALSO MAKING a bow was Mayor Richard Penn who was defeated by Ben Gordon in the November election. Penn, cl-maxing 12 years of public life—two as mayor and 10 as member of Council — also expressed the pleasure derived while serving the city.

The city's chief executive referred to two main objectives sought during his term: 1. annexation of land to the city and the employment of a qualified service director - engineer for the city.

All councilmen, department heads and officials present were given the opportunity to voice year-end comments. The spirit of good fellowship was concluded by a "Merry Christmas to all."

In other business, the solons agreed to conduct further study on a petition received Dec. 3 asking that N. Nicholas Drive be changed to Edgewood Drive. The request was made by residents of the area who contend that the present name causes confusion in mailing and other directional problems.

Councilmen said the confusion stems from a section of the roadway which lies in the county. This portion is commonly called Valentine Road. The name reverts back to N. Nicholas Drive for the section located north of Route 188.

Service committee members indicated they would contact the county commissioners with the recommendation that the county portion of the road also be designated Nicholas Drive.

SOLON John Jenkins reported that the Pennsylvania Railroad has started repair work on several of its crossings here. Council had earlier outlined a program calling for this work to be done.

A guest for the evening was Nide Lawson, manager of the local Gas Co. office. He explained the recent change that now designates his firm as Columbia Gas of Ohio instead of old title of Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Lawson said the operation here will remain the same, other than the descriptive title.

McNamara's Plane Jolted

Jetliner Avoids Paris Collision

PARIS (AP)—A plane carrying U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and members of his staff narrowly missed a collision today while taking off from Orly Airport for South Viet Nam.

McNamara's big K135 Air Force jet transport blew its tires when the pilot braked to avoid hitting an incoming plane.

The defense secretary had attended the annual winter meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial council. He is going to Saigon for his second on-the-spot assessment in three months of the Vietnamese and American fight against the Communist guerrillas.

The plane had been cleared for takeoff in a fog and was rolling down the runway when Capt. Meredith Sutton at the controls saw a large passenger plane land directly in line with the K135's takeoff path, a member of the American party said.

McNamara and his staff planned to take another U.S. military plane.

President Johnson is known to be gravely concerned that the success of the Viet Cong Communists have continued since a military coup overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem a month after McNamara's last visit.

Since the military's assumption of power Nov. 1, Guerrilla attacks have risen sharply, with heavy losses in men and equipment by South Vietnamese forces.

McNamara was reported to have decided on the trip to investigate whether the military junta can reverse the pattern.

Stock Mart Trade Heavy

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices churned in very heavy trading early this afternoon with market averages edging above their latest historic highs.

The list was a hodge podge of gains and losses running mostly from fractions to a point or so among key stocks.

The start of trading in Chrysler when - issued stock based on the 2-for-1 stock split was a big feature. Both Chrysler regular and the when-issued were delayed in opening because of a pile-up of buy orders.

Chrysler regular opened on blocks of 30,000 and 1,000 shares, up 1 1/2 at 96.

In later dealings Chrysler regular cut away all but a fraction of its early gains and when issued was down about a point from its opening.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 4 at 287.1 with industrials up 8 rails up 3 and utilities down .1.

The Africans broke past barricades into Red Square, where Russians march on May Day and on the anniversary of the October Revolution. But the scene was more reminiscent of the wild days of the revolution in 1917.

The students bore a sign showing a knife plunged into the head of an African. Another sign declared: "Friend today the evil tomorrow."

"Moscow is a second Alabama" shouted one student.

The students fought police all the way to Red Square from the Ghanaian Embassy a mile away, where they first gathered.

They stormed over a barricade of Soviet trucks at the entrance to Red Square, fighting police on top of the trucks and underneath.

The big gates of Spassky Tower, the main entrance from the Kremlin into Red Square, banged shut as students rolled over police opposition and tried to get into the Kremlin.

They stormed past the office of Khrushchev. They were separated from his office by the big red brick wall of the Kremlin. Whether he was inside his office was not known.

Inside the Kremlin, the Soviet Parliament was meeting, discussing the new budget.

Police apparently at no time used their guns to control the students. Instead they wheeled out loud speakers appealing for them to go home.

"Red Square is closed," one of the sound trucks blared out. But the students paid no attention.

Shortly after 2 p.m., crowds of shoppers who had swarmed into the square were driven out along with foreign correspondents.

People continued to pile into adjoining streets, never having seen an angry demonstration of foreigners against Russians.

The students remained in the square for a time and were reinforced later by some 200 more who came, apparently carrying a message of protest. They made their way up to Spassky Gate, where a Kremlin official came out and said a delegation of 10 would be received by the Ministry of Higher Education. A group of the demonstrators then headed for the ministry with their petition of complaint.

By 3 p.m., Red Square had been cleared. The barricades had been cleared. The barricades were withdrawn and the demonstration was over.

It was the first such demonstration by foreign students here directed at the Russians. Ghanaian students demonstrated last February in Communist Bulgaria, claiming racial persecution.

The dead man was identified as Asare Adu, who was studying medicine at Kalinin, 100 miles northwest of Moscow. He was said to have been killed Friday.

Some students said Soviet officials issued a statement blaming the death on natural causes, but the Africans disputed this.

City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins filed a demurrer against the original suit, claiming the plaintiffs could not be joined in one suit and that each taxpayer would have to file separately.

Plaintiffs of the suit filed yesterday are listed as "property owners" instead of "taxpayers" as in the original suit.

JUDGE William Ammer today granted a temporary restraining order to the property owners who seek court action to prevent the assessments from being placed on the tax rolls of the county. However, the assessments have not yet been certified by the County Auditor and would not have appeared on this year's taxes regardless of the temporary order. Bond was set at $1,000 by Judge Ammer.

The property owners in their petition, state that the city has "endeavored to illegally create Sanitary Sewer District No. 2" and that their protests concerning the district were ignored by the city in violation of a mandatory statute provision. Council failed to grant the property owners a hearing and continued to proceed with adopting the ordinance calling for the construction of the sewer district, according to the petition.

The plaintiffs claim the sewer was constructed at a capacity in excess of what would be necessary to provide services within the district. They also claim that some property owners within the district already had adequate municipal owned sewer facilities available.

Their objections included the various methods of determining and calculating the assessments. They allege that some methods were in violation of an ordinance that was passed by city council on property that was to be benefited by the sanitary sewer.

The petition asks that the ordinance creating the sewer district be declared void as well as all subsequent legislation.

The property owners petition the court to determine what portion of the sewer system's costs should be paid by the city and to assess the balance on the lots and lands within the district in proportion to the benefits derived by individual property owners.

Tom A. Renick, Emmitt L. Crist and the firm of Simkins and Young represent the property owners in the court action.

Judge William Ammer said today that he had voluntarily "stepped aside" from hearing the case if and when it goes to court.

McNamara's Plane Jolted

Jetliner Avoids Paris Collision

PARIS (AP)—A plane carrying U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and members of his staff narrowly missed a collision today while taking off from Orly Airport for South Viet Nam.

McNamara's big K135 Air Force jet transport blew its tires when the pilot braked to avoid hitting an incoming plane.

The defense secretary had attended the annual winter meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial council. He is going to Saigon for his second on-the-spot assessment in three months of the Vietnamese and American fight against the Communist guerrillas.

The plane had been cleared for takeoff in a fog and was rolling down the runway when Capt. Meredith Sutton at the controls saw a large passenger plane land directly in line with the K135's takeoff path, a member of the American party said.

McNamara and his staff planned to take another U.S. military plane.

President Johnson is known to be gravely concerned that the success of the Viet Cong Communists have continued since a military coup overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem a month after McNamara's last visit.

Since the military's assumption of power Nov. 1, Guerrilla attacks have risen sharply, with heavy losses in men and equipment by South Vietnamese forces.

McNamara was reported to have decided on the trip to investigate whether the military junta can reverse the pattern.

Stock Mart Trade Heavy

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices churned in very heavy trading early this afternoon with market averages edging above their latest historic highs.

The list was a hodge podge of gains and losses running mostly from fractions to a point or so among key stocks.

The start of trading in Chrysler when it issued stock based on the 2-for-1 stock split was a big feature. Both Chrysler regular and the when-issued were delayed in opening because of a pile-up of buy orders.

Chrysler regular opened on blocks of 33,000 and 1,000 shares, up 1 1/2 at 96.

In later dealings Chrysler regular cut away all but a fraction of its early gains and when issued was down about a point from its opening.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 4 at 287.1 with industrials up 8 rails up 3 and utilities down 1.

The Africans broke past barricades into Red Square, where Russians march on May Day and on the anniversary of the October Revolution. But the scene was more reminiscent of the wild days of the revolution in 1917.

The students bore a sign showing a knife plunged into the head of an African. Another sign declared: "Friend today the evil tomorrow."

"Moscow is a second Alabama" shouted one student.

The students fought police all the way to Red Square from the Ghanian Embassy a mile away, where they first gathered.

They stormed over a barricade of Soviet trucks at the entrance to Red Square, fighting police on top of the trucks and underneath.

The big gates of Spassky Tower, the main entrance from the Kremlin into Red Square, banged shut as students rolled over police opposition and tried to get into the Kremlin.

They stormed past the office of Khrushchev. They were separated from his office by the big red brick wall of the Kremlin. Whether he was inside his office was not known.

Inside the Kremlin, the Soviet Parliament was meeting, discussing the new budget.

Police apparently at no time used their guns to control the students. Instead they wheeled out loud speakers appealing for them to go home.

"Red Square is closed," one of the sound trucks blared out. But the students paid no attention.

Shortly after 2 p.m., crowds of shoppers who had swarmed into the square were driven out along with foreign correspondents.

People continued to pile into adjoining streets, never having seen an angry demonstration of foreigners against Russians.

The students remained in the square for a time and were reinforced later by some 200 more who came, apparently carrying a message of protest. They made their way up to Spassky Gate, where a Kremlin official came out and said a delegation of 10 would be received by the Ministry of Higher Education. A group of the demonstrators then headed for the ministry with their petition of complaint.

By 3 p.m., Red Square had been cleared. The barricades had been cleared. The demonstrators were withdrawn and the demonstration was over.

It was the first such demonstration by foreign students here directed at the Russians. Ghanian students demonstrated last February in Communist Bulgaria, claiming racial persecution.

The dead man was identified as Asare Adu, who was studying medicine at Kalinin, 108 miles northwest of Moscow. He was said to have been killed Friday.

Some students said Soviet officials issued a statement blaming the death on natural causes, but the Africans disputed this.

NEW YORK (AP) — Auto makers and steel mills are giving the economy its biggest upward boost just now with the consumer chipping in with his dollars.

Output of industrial machinery and freight and passenger equipment also is credited with helping autos and steel push industrial output to a record high in November.

Retail trade in most sections seems set for new December highs with consumers spending freely.

Auto executives are using present healthy demand for their 1964 models as a base for predicting a third straight good sales year ahead. In turn, their orders for materials are bolstering the steel industry.

Steel output, running in excess of two million tons a week in mid-December, is 11 per cent higher than a year ago. This month production at the mills usually drops. But this time management has been pleasantly surprised with the help in demand. Many steel sales executives are now predicting their shipment schedules should remain at about the same rate through January and February.

Consumer attitudes are being watched carefully. However, purchases of autos, appliances and other hard goods are seen by some as signs of confidence in the new administration and public expectation that no break in general good times is likely soon.

Sales of soft goods are continuing at their normal December pace, the best month of the year in many lines.

Makers of industrial machinery look for good orders ahead while still working on those at hand.

Better outlook for several of the nation's railroads has affected the price of their stocks and their own ordering of needed freight and passenger equipment.

The construction industry thinks all of this—from consumer confidence through industrial spending—promises it another good year.

But some economists are crying caution. They remember that past business upswings have shown similar spurts shortly before the downturn. And the traditionalists harp on the age of the present upswing, already older than the postwar average.

Coup that Failed

By John Chamberlain

His calling card reads simply "Le General Cantave." In his native Haiti, where he recently led an abortive uprising against Dictator Francois Duvalier and the ferocious palace guard of Ton Ton Macoutes, or "Bogymen," it is not necessary to inform anybody that he is General Leon Cantave, a man of resource and courage.

Now in the United States, "Le General" has a hair-raising story to tell, and perhaps it sheds a great deal of light on why the U.S.-supported Juan Bosch, recently deposed President of the Dominican Republic, could not hold on to his power. Bosch, who lived in fear of his local Communists, apparently could not follow through with a decision if it in any way happened to offend the extreme Leftists in his own entourage.

Last summer General Cantave, who had opposed the Duvalier grab for dictatorial power in Haiti, proposed to Bosch that an expedition to overthrow the savagely repressive Haitian regime might advantageously be set in motion from Dominican base. Bosch, according to the Cantave account, agreed to support a Haitian "army of liberation." So did a number of anti-Castro Cubans, who made arrangements to take off in small boats from Florida for a rendezvous with Cantave on the north coast of Haiti. It was assumed that the United States, which has had no love for the Haitian dictator, would not negligently while the Cubans moved to the support of General Cantave.

With his rear apparently secured in the Dominican Republic, Cantave took off over the Haitian border with two hundred loyal followers. He moved into friendly territory, where semi-starved peasants might be expected to rally to his flag. But just as the Haitian rebellion against "Papa Doc" Duvalier and the Ton Ton Macoutes hit the world's headlines, things began to go badly for General Cantave.

For one thing, the anti-Castro Cubans never did manage to take off from Florida to lend their support. The Cuban leader, Orlando Masserer, was clapped by the U. S. into jail for a week. And the Cubans' boats were stopped, their arms seized.

Simultaneously with this collapse of Cantave's "northern flank," President Bosch proceeded to deprive "Le General" of the promised supplies from the Dominican Republic. The Dominican Communists had carried to Bosch a threat that the Haitian Dictator Duvalier would make an appeal to Fidel Castro for help, and would open the airfields and harbors of Haiti to Castroite soldiers from Cuba. According to Cantave's complaints, this was sufficient to cause Bosch to renege on his promised aid.

With his ammunition running out, and no airplanes at his service, Cantave and his band of two hundred were isolated in Haiti's savagely eroded mountains. There was no food to be had. Losing fifty men in skirmishes, Cantave and the remaining part of his band finally managed to straggle back over the Dominican border.

Whereupon both he and his army were clapped into the prison "Fortress of the Twentieth of February," where they were to remain for twenty-five days.

While Cantave was in prison the Bosch regime was overthrown and replaced by the three-man junta that is now in power in the Dominican Republic. Eventually the junta, which does not believe in trucking to Communists and Castroites, opened the doors of the fortress and let Cantave and his men go. Cantave, who has the support of the exiled Haitian leader of the National Party, Dr. Roger Rigaud, managed to get transportation to the United States. But his one hundred and fifty followers are still on Dominican soil, in rags and without any more food than they can scrounge up.

Maybe it was realism for the U. S. to clamp down on the anti-Castro Cubans who might have helped General Cantave get rid of the Haitian tyrant. If Castro had been provoked into action, Haiti might now be an appendage to Communist Cuba. But as Cantave sees it, the point about Bosch still holds. He was an indecisive man. That is why he was deposed as President of the Dominican Republic.

Some people leave happiness in their wake as they sail through life. I strew shattered pottery behind me.

Glasses, china, ashtrays, vases slip through my hands like money through a compulsive gambler's. It's not just fragile things I manage to fracture—the toughest jelly glass has a short life in my kitchen.

I buy glasses a dozen at a time, hoping I can set a matching table for at least a little while. I manage to go through the first 11 in short order, but the final glass in each set proves almost indestructible. Consequently there are usually seven or eight glasses of completely different design in my cabinet.

Smugly I took the guarantee slip out. There it was, "guaranteed a full year."

I insist on having my teeth taken out, although my dentist has advised against it. I believe that my teeth are the cause of all my troubles... the ringing in my ears, my allergy, and my arthritis. Do you have any suggestions? P. S. I'm worried about cancer.

Mrs. H. D. N., New York

Dear Mrs. N: Despite the advice of your dentist, a highly trained expert, you are apparently determined to find some dentist somewhere who will remove your own valuable teeth.

While there is validity to the possibility that teeth may be a focus of infection in other parts of the body, to attempt to make this evaluation yourself would undoubtedly do you a great injustice.

When the dentist and the doctor cooperate closely in problems like yours, laboratory and clinical studies are carefully reviewed together and the cause of infection is properly established.

Before embarking on dental surgery that cannot be reversed, you should seek the advice and combined judgment of both your doctor and your dentist.

The fear of cancer somehow has a way of creeping into almost any medical problem. When emotions are at a low ebb, the fear of serious disease often becomes overwhelming.

When you discuss your fears frankly with your dentist and your doctor you will get the reassurance you need.

My daughter at the age of 6 months is a victim of cerebral palsy. Could you tell me anything of this condition that will be helpful? Also, is there any hope that she will be better?

Your own doctor seems to have given you a comforting explanation. If you still feel anxious or confused, he will be glad to talk to you again. There is no need, however, for your friends to involve themselves in this aspect of such a personal and emotionally distressing experience.

NEW YORK (AP) — Auto makers and steel mills are giving the economy its biggest upward boost just now with the consumer chipping in with his dollars.

Output of industrial machinery and freight and passenger equipment also is credited with helping autos and steel push industrial output to a record high in November.

Retail trade for most sections seems set for new December highs with consumers spending freely.

Auto executives are using present healthy demand for their 1964 models as a base for predicting a third straight good sales year ahead. In turn, their orders for materials are bolstering the steel industry.

Steel output, running in excess of two million tons a week in mid-December, is 11 per cent higher than a year ago. This month production at the mills usually drops. But this time management has been pleasantly surprised with the holdup in demand. Many steel sales executives are now predicting their shipment schedules should remain at about the same rate through January and February.

Consumer attitudes are being watched carefully. However, purchases of autos, appliances and other hard goods are seen by some as signs of confidence in the new administration and public expectation that no break in general good times is likely soon.

Sales of soft goods are continuing at their normal December pace, the best month of the year in many lines.

Makers of industrial machinery look for good orders ahead while still working on those at hand.

Better outlook for several of the nation's railroads has affected the price of their stocks and their own ordering of needed freight and passenger equipment.

The construction industry thinks all of this—from consumer confidence through industrial spending—promises it another good year.

But some economists are crying caution. They remember that past business upswings have shown similar spurts shortly before the downturn. And the traditionalists harp on the age of the present upswing, already older than the postwar average.

His calling card reads simply "Le General Cantave." In his native Haiti, where he recently led an abortive uprising against Dictator Francois Duvalier and the ferocious palace guard of Ton Ton Macoutes, or "Bogymen," it is not necessary to inform anybody that he is General Leon Cantave, a man of resource and courage.

Now in the United States, "Le General" has a hair-raising story to tell, and perhaps it sheds a great deal of light on why the U.S.-supported Juan Bosch, recently deposed President of the Dominican Republic, could not hold on to his power. Bosch, who lived in fear of his local Communists, apparently could not follow through

With his rear apparently secured in the Dominican Republic, Cantave took off over the Haitian border with two hundred loyal followers. He moved into friendly territory, where semi-starved peasants might be expected to rally to his flag. But just as the Haitian rebellion against 'Papa Doc' Duvalier and the Ton Ton Macoutes hit the world's headlines, things began to go badly for General Cantave.

For one thing, the anti-Castro Cubans never did manage to take off from Florida to lend their support. The Cuban leader, Orlando Masserier, was clapped by the U. S. into jail for a week. And the Cubans' boats were stopped, their arms seized.

which has had no love for the Haitian dictator, would not willingly while the Cubans moved to the support of General Cantave.

Simultaneously with this collapse of Cantave's "northern flank," President Bosch proceeded to deprive "Le General" of the promised supplies from the Dominican Republic. The Dominican Communists had carried to Bosch a threat that the Haitian Dictator Duvalier would make an appeal to Fidel Castro for help, and would open the airfields and harbors of Haiti to Castroite soldiers from Cuba. Make Holiday Preparations Family Affair

By ELEANOR ROSS

Once children uncover Santa's true identity, they don't throw tantrums, but instead they want to take part in all the Christmas preliminaries. Let them even if it means work for you, the official supervisor and clean-up artist.

You might even wish to embellish some of the traditional activities, turning them into projects that are simple enough for children to handle, yet so effective that, when completed, they bring squeals of delight.

Here are suggestions for such projects with strong visual appeal, guaranteed to whip up small fry enthusiasm.

Trace the outline of a tree or some equally Christmasy motif on a sheet of brown paper. Cut out the design so that you have a stencil. Attach stencil to window with tape.

Now mix four tablespoons of baking soda with half a cup of water.

The "snow-da," when sprayed on with a flit-gun, atomizer or whatever, produces the same effect as commercial push-button "snow." Only the baking soda costs so much less and since it's a pure food product it is perfectly safe for children to work with. No need to worry if it travels from hands to mouths.

Since the window will need a couple of applications to get the motif really snowy, it will keep the children happily occupied for a while. When it comes to cleaning off the decor, that's easy. A quick-as-a-wink job is done with a swipe of a rough rag. And it cleans the window, too!

Another project for children is to spray the tree with the soda solution to give it a snowy look. Fine greens to be used for decoration can either be sprayed or they can be dipped in the solution. The spray won't harm rugs. When dry the vacuum cleaner will take care of residue.

An animated Christmas display can be made in a tall apothecary jar, vase or bowl. But it is recommended only for older children, since one of the ingredients is mothballs, which are poisonous if swallowed.

Anchor a tiny tree branch candle, sprig of pine or a large pine cone to the bottom of the jar, vase or bowl, using modeling clay. Toss in a handful of mothballs and a quarter cup of white vinegar plus a teaspoon of baking soda for every glass of water needed to fill the container. The mothballs will bob around for a half hour or so. When they get sluggish, another dash of vinegar and soda will jostle them back into action.

Circle No. 4 with Mrs. Chest-er Blue as chairman were responsible for the decorations and Circle No. 5 with Mrs. Walter Pickel, chairman, planned and served the refreshments.

EUB Kappa Beta Class Holds Dinner, Meet

Members of the Kappa Beta Class of the First EUB Church held a dinner at Pickaway Arms followed by a gift exchange and meeting conducted in the home of Miss Lucille Kirkwood, 520 N. Court St.

The Rev. and Mrs. Gibbs were guests.

Miss Kirkwood told the Christmas story and each member read appropriate Scripture. Miss Carol Kirkwood presented a piano and vocal solo. The group sang a medley of Christmas carols. Mrs. O. F. Gibbs closed devotions with prayer.

Mrs. Tom Weaver had charge of the business session. A gift exchange was held and mystery sisters were disclosed. Mrs. Woodrow Carley won the door prize.

The executive committee will be in charge of the next meeting, to be held in the service center.

ROYAL VISITORS AT ROYAL EXHIBITION—Leaving the Royal Academy Exhibition of Goya paintings in London, Queen Elizabeth (left) and Princess Margaret do not look like they are expecting their babies within a month of each other. Dear Abby: by Abigail Van Buren Don't Sleep In!

DEAR ABBY: I am a respectable woman of 59. While being interviewed for a job as live-in cook and housekeeper for a well-to-do elderly gentleman who lives alone in a 12-room house, he asked me if I snored! He said he does not wish to be disturbed while he is sleeping. What does this have to do with my qualifications as a cook and housekeeper?

JOB HUNTING
DEAR HUNTING: Obviously his sleeping quarters are within hearing distance of yours. An if YOU do not wish to be disturbed while YOU are sleeping, I suggest you work days and go home nights.

DEAR ABBY: We are three sisters, 19, 22, and 24, so we aren't exactly children. Our problem is our mother. She is 47, a wonderful person, and attractive. She has been a widow for eight years, and has been going with the same man for six years. He is married and claims he has been trying to get a divorce all this time, but can't. (Is this possible?) Meanwhile, he is living with his wife, and Mother can't even be seen in public with him. We doubt if this man will ever be free to marry her. Mother says she "loves" him and one day he will marry her. Two of us girls are married, and when the last one goes we don't want Mother to be left alone. What can we do?

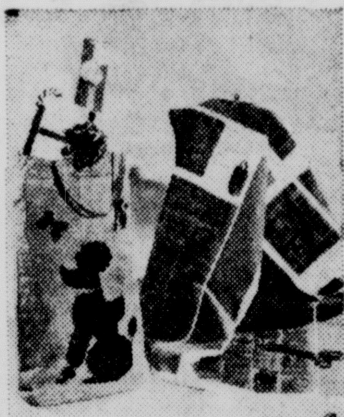

THREE WHO CARE
DEAR THREE: You can tell her what you've told me, but don't be surprised if your words of wisdom fall on deaf ears. One of the symptoms of the illness called forbidden love (he is married, you know) is deafness.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been separated for several years. We have a 12-year-old daughter. The relationship between my estranged wife and me has been cordial except for one incident which is the reason for this letter. I recently learned that my wife had baptized our daughter in her faith, not mine, without having consulted me. My question: Could I annul the baptism? Also, could I have our daughter baptized in my own church at a later date if the first baptism can be annulled?

DISCONTENTED
DEAR DISCONTENTED: After consulting clergymen of several faiths, I may report that one may RE-baptize, but one may not DE-baptize. In other words, a baptism cannot be annulled.

Housecleaning Schedule Is Necessary

Have you ever had a friend offer to help you with the dinner dishes and been able to fling open the cupboard doors with pride because you know the shelves are all cleaned and tidied? Isn't it a blissful feeling and a bit smug, too!

Alas, though, it's all too often the other way around. Company drops in the day before you decide to clean out cupboards and cabinets or the day before you get those limp curtains into the washing machine.

Or, even more embarrassing, a visitor takes a book out of the bookcase and had to wipe her dusty hands on her handkerchief!

It's the occasional cleaning jobs that trip up the home maker, the reason being, of course, that the occasion never comes! It's always put off until tomorrow with the tomorrow that never seems to make it.

That's why most of us need a housecleaning schedule to follow. It takes just a little time and effort to make a list of the various small jobs which need to be done periodically and, by sticking to such a list all of the cleaning chores are going to get done.

Nothing gets left, week after week, month after month, to build up into a real exhausting project because it has been neglected for so long.

The aim should be to keep the house clean rather than merely get it that way from time to time.

When certain jobs are done every day, others every week, and the rest at specified intervals, dust and dirt can't accumulate to embarrassing proportions. Think how nice it would be to know your house could stand inspection from top to bottom any day in the week!

Speaking of company, have you seen the new hostess or party aprons?

Those tiny, brief aprons are all very well for the hostess cook when she wears her skirt knee-length or shorter. But now it's the longtrailing at-home gown that has taken over — and that certainly calls for something more substantial for even the most proficient cook can spill the soufflé. And she needs something more to cover her long skirt than a handful of nylon organdy.

So take a look at the new party aprons — the kind that extend right down to the ankle. There is certainly no lack of glamour in these practical fashion fancies.

One of the nicest is a wrap-around in paisley print cotton with a brightly colored tie sash. In fact, this looks more like a party skirt than an apron. But it can go into the washing machine after each wearing.

Of course most at home outfits can also take to the washing machine — but the apron can be peeled off right after dinner.

U.S.-Soviet Exchange Hit

Ohioan Urges End To Cultural Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Congressman Michael A. Feighan says the United States-Soviet Union cultural exchange program should be dropped.

Feighan, a Cleveland Democrat, told a news conference Tuesday that he and the House subcommittee on immigration and nationality policy, of which he is chairman, are unanimously agreed.

All, he said, feel the arrangement isn't worth renewing when its present authorization expires Dec. 31.

Feighan said the subcommittee decided to urge a halt in the exchange program after hearing testimony last week from Yale Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn. The professor, imprisoned by the Russians for 16 days recently on spy charges testified in secret and Feighan refused to elaborate on what Barghoorn said.

But the Ohioan said the impact was great.

"Russian student and scientific studies in the United States penetrate into the vitals of our scientific life," Feighan said, "while studies pursued by legitimate American students in Soviet Russia border on boondoggling."

U.S. citizens studying in Russia, according to Feighan, get access only to "stuff available by the ton in the Library of Congress."

On the other hand, he said, the "so-called cultural educational exchange program provides a legal cover for Russian scientific espionage in the United States."

Feighan released the text of a letter he sent Secretary of State Dean Rusk last Friday. It urged that the exchange program not be renewed before the subcommittee completes its inquiry, and said more witnesses will be called next month.

City Council Bans Akron Locker Clubs

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Locker clubs, which provide their customers with mixes and food and a place to store their liquor, have been outlawed by City Council.

The clubs do not sell liquor, therefore they have been able to operate when bars must be closed. The ordinance was drafted after Vice Squad members who wanted to close down a locker club on East Market Street discovered they had no authority to do so.

City Solons Subpoenaed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Eight city councilmen have been subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury which launches today a probe of allegations by one Council member that a bribe offer was made during the struggle for power in Council.

The jury will investigate a statement by Councilman Michael Fatica, Ward 19 Democrat, who alleges that James V. Stanton offered money and a city commission for his vote at a Nov. 26 party caucus.

Stanton, who won out over veteran Council President Jack Russell at that caucus, branded the charges a lie and a smear. He said it was part of a move made by Russell to nullify the effect of the caucus in an effort to perpetuate his rein over Council.

Stanton, Russell, Fatica and Fatica's wife are among those who have been subpoenaed. Fatica's wife reportedly heard a portion of the conversation between Fatica and Stanton at her home Nov. 25.

Others subpoenaed include City Clerk Thad Fusco, Councilman Mercedes Cotner, who was chosen by the same caucus to replace Fusco, and three newspaper reporters.

One question that is expected to come up during the investigation is: "What real status does the party caucus have?"

The Democrats voted at the caucus to support Stanton for Council president under the unit rule. If this is followed, all Democrats, including Russell's supporters, are bound morally to support Stanton when Council organizes Jan. 6. Since the Democrats have a majority in the 33-member Council, he would be assured the presidency.

Observers speculate that if the Russell block should break away from the unit rule, using the alleged bribe offer as a pretext, Russell might pick up enough support from the Republicans to defeat Stanton Jan. 6.

Growers Urged To Divert Their Feed Grain Acres

The 1964 feed grain program can furnish the answer to some farm operators' questions about what to do with their land next year, according to Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Pickaway County Committee.

If the farm has a feed grain base, the farm operator will be eligible to participate in the 1964 feed grain program, thus earning diversion payments by keeping land out of unneeded feed grain production and shifting it to conservation uses, Mowery said.

"We're encouraging feed grain farmers to look into the advantages to be gained by taking part in the 1964 feed grain program," the Chairman declared. "There are definite advantages to farm owners and operators in putting crop acres into conserving uses under the feed grain program instead of turning out crop production which only results in building up extra supplies.

"We've made good progress in the past few years in trying to cut back production of the feed grains so that our stocks will be in better balance with demand, but we're not in the clear yet. That's why Congress authorized continuation of the feed grain diversion program for 1964 and 1965.

"WHILE the sign-up will not be held until early next year, the main provisions of the 1964 program have already been announced. A farm operator can participate by diverting from 20 to 50 per cent of his farm's feed grain base, with higher rates of payment for diversion greater than the minimum.

"And of course eligibility for price support on corn, grain sorghum, and barley depends on participation in the feed grain program," the chairman added.

Mowery suggests that farmers become fully familiar with advantages of the 1964 feed grain program before completing their crop plans for next year.

The clubs do not sell liquor, therefore they have been able to operate when bars must be closed. The ordinance was drafted after Vice Squad members who wanted to close down a locker club on East Market Street discovered they had no authority to do so.

City Solons Subpoenaed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Eight city councilmen have been subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury which launches today a probe of allegations by one Council member that a bribe offer was made during the struggle for power in Council.

The jury will investigate a statement by Councilman Michael Fatica, Ward 19 Democrat, who alleges that James V. Stanton offered money and a city commission for his vote at a Nov. 26 party caucus.

Stanton, who won out over veteran Council President Jack Russell at that caucus, branded the charges a lie and a smear. He said it was part of a move made by Russell to nullify the effect of the caucus in an effort to perpetuate his rein over Council.

Stanton, Russell, Fatica and Fatica's wife are among those who have been subpoenaed. Fatica's wife reportedly heard a portion of the conversation between Fatica and Stanton at her home Nov. 25.

Others subpoenaed include City Clerk Thad Fusco, Councilman Mercedes Cotner, who was chosen by the same caucus to replace Fusco, and three newspaper reporters.

One question that is expected to come up during the investigation is: "What real status does the party caucus have?"

The Democrats voted at the caucus to support Stanton for Council president under the unit rule. If this is followed, all Democrats, including Russell's supporters, are bound morally to support Stanton when Council organizes Jan. 6. Since the Democrats have a majority in the 33-member Council, he would be assured the presidency.

Observers speculate that if the Russell block should break away from the unit rule, using the alleged bribe offer as a pretext, Russell might pick up enough support from the Republicans to defeat Stanton Jan. 6.

Growers Urged To Divert Their Feed Grain Acres

The 1964 feed grain program can furnish the answer to some farm operators' questions about what to do with their land next year, according to Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Pickaway County Committee.

If the farm has a feed grain base, the farm operator will be eligible to participate in the 1964 feed grain program, thus earning diversion payments by keeping land out of unneeded feed grain production and shifting it to conservation uses, Mowery said.

"We're encouraging feed grain farmers to look into the advantages to be gained by taking part in the 1964 feed grain program," the Chairman declared. "There are definite advantages to farm owners and operators in putting crop acres into conserving uses under the feed grain program instead of turning out crop production which only results in building up extra supplies.

"We've made good progress in the past few years in trying to cut back production of the feed grains so that our stocks will be in better balance with demand, but we're not in the clear yet. That's why Congress authorized continuation of the feed grain diversion program for 1964 and 1965.

"While the sign-up will not be held until early next year, the main provisions of the 1964 program have already been announced. A farm operator can participate by diverting from 20 to 50 per cent of his farm's feed grain base, with higher rates of payment for diversion greater than the minimum.

"And of course eligibility for price support on corn, grain sorghum, and barley depends on participation in the feed grain program," the chairman added.

Mowery suggests that farmers become fully familiar with advantages of the 1964 feed grain program before completing their crop plans for next year.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Dec. 18th, the 352nd day of 1963. There are 13 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1777 Gen. George Washington's Continental Army took up winter quarters at Valley Forge. On the same date, the army also observed a day of general thanksgiving.

In 1865, the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, abolishing slavery, became effective.

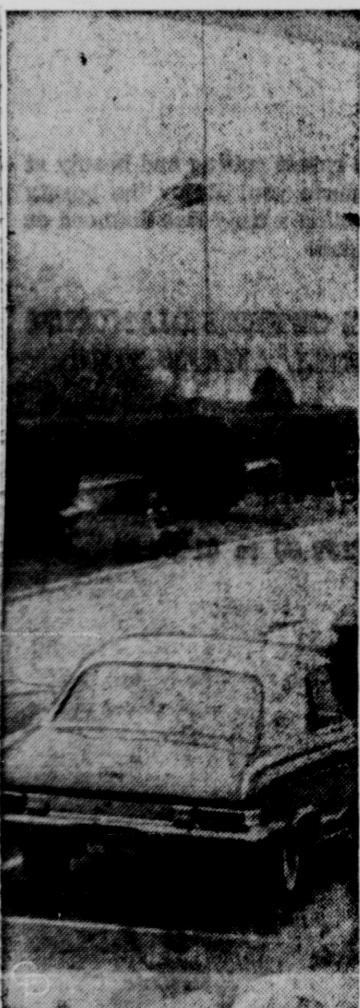

In 1943, a train wreck at Lumberton, N.C. killed 73 persons.

In 1945, the British House of Lords upheld the treason conviction of William Joyce, who as "Lord Haw Haw" had broadcast for Nazi Germany during World War II.

Ten years ago — The Italian government granted Christmas amnesty for more than 23,000 prisoners.

Five years ago — The Air Force hurled a 4½-ton Atlas ICBM into orbit around the earth.

One year ago—South Korean voters approved a new constitution by a 4-1 margin.

OLD GLORY flies upside down at main entrance of the Pentagon, Washington. The flag was this way for four hours. Officials absolved the military, saying the flag is the General Services Administration's responsibility, and that the error would have been discovered sooner if there had been a wind to unfurl it.

Period of Mourning 'Good' for U.S. Capital

NEW YORK (AP) — The current period of mourning has been good for the nation's capital, according to James (Scotty) Reston, chief Washington correspondent for the New York Times.

Reston, who has won two Pulitzer Prizes for outstanding reporting, observes that "the conversation of Washington usually influences legislation and lately the conversation has changed in tone and direction." Reston's observations continue:

It has been quieter and less dogmatic since the death of President Kennedy. It has been less partisan. And it has been more concerned with the structure and development of our own country than with urgencies of foreign affairs.

Odd things have been happening. Officials have been going home nights and having dinner alone with their wives or a few friends. Some of them have even had time to think or read a book, and the beginning of a new Administration, under melancholy circumstances, has encouraged new approaches to old problems.

Secretary of Defense McNamara, for example has been working on an absolutely original and even revolutionary idea.

This is that if a military base in the United States or overseas is no longer necessary to the security of the United States, it should be closed.

Congressmen in the districts concerned are of course furious, but even their angry lamentations have done some good. For it is now evident that many of these bases were being run at great expense, not because they were essential to the defense of the country, but because they were essential to the economy of the communities where they were located. And this in turn has forced the government to think a little more about having a plan to convert part of its vast military establishment to useful civilian projects.

A lot of important domestic projects have been paralyzed for years because powerful political forces could not agree. Integration of the races in the public schools is one of them. Substantial progress has been made in some areas, but only token progress has been made in most places in the South and the political fight has centered on forcing total integration as soon as possible.

Lately, however, a new theme has been heard here. This is that, while the battle for integration of the public schools must go on, a great deal more must be done to improve the education in the Negro schools if another whole generation of Negro children is not to come on the labor market unprepared for jobs in an increasingly technical society.

Most of the Negro children in the South, and in many of the large cities of the North, are not only going to segregated schools, but to schools that are both separate and unequal. Accordingly, at least some officials and politicians here are now talking about trying to make the Negro schools equally as good as the white while at the same time continuing the fight for public school integration.

Even the battle over federal aid to primary and secondary schools is now coming in for renewed study. This has been blocked for years by differences between Protestants and Roman Catholics over federal aid to public but not to private schools. Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist, suggested that instead of a broad bill applying federal aid to all public schools in all states, the problem should be attacked as an emergency measure dealing first with the very worst problems in the nation.

"Why don't we select, beginning next year," he said, "the 100 lowest income areas and designate them as special educational districts? They would then be equipped or reequipped with a truly excellent and comprehensive school plant. . . ."

It is interesting that Abraham Ribicoff, when he was Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, put forth roughly the same idea of an emergency educational plan to be financed by the federal government, like any other national emergency, before the Congress. It even reached the point where a majority of the rules committee was for it, but it finally got lost in the shuffle.

There is, however, a new atmosphere now, a more receptive mood, a greater willingness to look for ways out of old dilemmas. Accordingly, Galbraith's idea is now likely to get a better hearing than Ribicoff's did just two years ago.

More than this, there is a feeling that it is both necessary and possible to give a higher priority in time and money to domestic affairs, without affecting the security of the country or the alliance.

Some people have felt this was true for quite a while, but policies have a life of their own and often continue long after the conditions that produced them have changed.

The shock of President Kennedy's death, however, has startled the capital out of many assumptions, and created a new receptivity for new ideas and a new concern for the nation.

Kremlin Hierarchy Trims Khrushchev's Budget Request

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Premier Khrushchev appears to have won only a partial victory with the new Soviet budget, possibly through compromise after a clash in the Kremlin hierarchy.

The battle may not be over. Some oddities about the Soviet budget session suggest that Khrushchev is encountering opposition.

The big argument seems to revolve about defense spending. The Supreme Soviet—a rubber-stamp parliament — was told Monday that the defense budget is being cut next year by the equivalent of $666 million. Actually, that is not much of a cut. And in the Soviet budget it is impossible to determine what money appropriated under other titles goes toward defense.

Santa Raises Too Much Dust

NEW YORK (AP) — Santa Claus was cited for raising too much dust in Times Square Monday.

Clarence (Slim) Williamson, 36, a laborer helping rebuild the Times Tower, was dressed in a Santa suit and beard at the suggestion of his employer, the Wrecking Corp. of America. He got a ticket from Patrolman Edward Kocienda for "loading building debris from a chute onto a truck without wetting the debris." A company spokesman said the water pipes were frozen.

GETTING TO KNOW YOU: Little Virginia Paige, 5, who was born with a birth defect, gets acquainted with Philip Dawson, 18, of Jamestown, N. Y., and Judy Meyers, also 18, of Aurora, Colo., who were appointed national co-chairmen for the 1964 Teen Age Program (TAP) of the March of Dimes. Thanks to the latest medical techniques, provided by March of Dimes funds, you'd never know that Virginia, who lives in New York with her parents, was born with a serious birth defect.

Thousands of teen-agers across the nation have found a way to have fun while doing an important community project.

They have joined the Teen-Age Program (TAP) of the 1964 March of Dimes in the fight against birth defects and arthritis.

Many are helping to carry out the public education program against birth defects, today's greatest unsolved childhood medical problem. Others are assigned to help with the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes. A great many choose to think up their own projects in their schools or suburbs.

Whatever job, it is important, because the fight against birth defects is vital to every young person who plans to have his own family someday after completing school and career preparations.

Heading the TAP program are Judy Meyers, 18, Aurora, Colo., and Philip Dawson, also 18, Jamestown, N. Y., who are the national TAP co-chairmen for the 1964 March of Dimes this January.

Judy, a freshman at the University of Colorado, was a vice president of Mu Alpha Theta, mathematics honor society at Aurora High School, and Philip, a freshman at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, was a member of the National Honor Society at Jamestown High School.

Both young people feel that a high scholastic rating is not only desirable but necessary in today's world. Both feel that good marks give a teen leader added prestige with his peers.

"It's terribly old-fashioned to think that the Big Man on Campus is a 'C' student," Judy and Philip said. "More often than not, he's an 'A' student who is also aware of the importance of community activities."

Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Meyers of Aurora. She became a March of Dimes volunteer several years ago because she wanted "to do something useful." She decided to study languages at the University of Colorado for the same reason, because she thinks that linguists can be of service to their country in the coming years.

Philip, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Dawson of Jamestown, comes from a family active in community service. His father is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church of Jamestown, and a district commissioner for the Boys Scouts of America. Philip first heard of the March of Dimes through his mother, who was active in the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes during the year the Salk vaccine was being developed and tested.

Currently, Philip plans to go on to law school after college. He has tentative plans for a career in politics, "because I feel that this is an interesting part of our present-day life."

Both young people feel that if teens throughout the country are told the importance of the March of Dimes programs against birth defects, arthritis and polio, they will volunteer in great numbers for January's March of Dimes.

They based their predictions on two things, (1) neither Philip nor Judy ever had any trouble in finding volunteers for their March of Dimes projects in their home states, and (2) both teens pointed to the fact that the Peace Corps never has and trouble in finding volunteers.

"Young people today want to do something useful, along with putting forth every effort to do justice to their scholastic programs," the two national March of Dimes volunteers said. "Just because a teen wears sloppy clothes sometimes and is a little loud other times doesn't mean that he doesn't want to do something worthwhile. The vast majority of teens want very much to be good, useful citizens."

Period of Mourning 'Good' for U.S. Capital

NEW YORK (AP) — The current period of mourning has been good for the nation's capital, according to James (Scotty) Reston, chief Washington correspondent for the New York Times.

Reston, who has won two Pulitzer Prizes for outstanding reporting, observes that "the conversation of Washington usually influences legislation and lately the conversation has changed in tone and direction." Reston's observations continue:

It has been quieter and less dogmatic since the death of President Kennedy. It has been less partisan. And it has been more concerned with the structure and development of our own country than with urgencies of foreign affairs.

Odd things have been happening. Officials have been going home nights and having dinner alone with their wives or a few friends. Some of them have even had time to think or read a book, and the beginning of a new Administration, under melancholy circumstances, has encouraged new approaches to old problems.

Secretary of Defense McNamara, for example has been working on an absolutely original and even revolutionary idea. This is that if a military base in the United States or overseas is no longer necessary to the security of the United States, it should be closed.

Congressmen in the districts concerned are of course furious, but even their angry laments have done some good. For it is now evident that many of these bases were being run at great expense, not because they were essential to the defense of the country, but because they were essential to the economy of the communities where they were located. And this in turn has forced the government to think a little more about having a plan to convert part of its vast military establishment to useful civilian projects.

A lot of important domestic projects have been paralyzed for years because powerful political forces could not agree. Integration of the races in the public schools is one of them. Substantial progress has been made in some areas, but only token progress has been made in most places in the South and the political fight has centered on forcing total integration as soon as possible.

Lately, however, a new theme has been heard here. This is that, while the battle for integration of the public schools must go on, a great deal more must be done to improve the education in the Negro schools if another whole generation of Negro children is not to come on the labor market unprepared for jobs in an increasingly technical society.

Most of the Negro children in the South, and in many of the large cities of the North, are not only going to segregated schools, but to schools that are both separate and unequal. Accordingly, at least some officials and politicians here are now talking about trying to make the Negro schools equally as good as the white while at the same time continuing the fight for public school integration.

Even the battle over federal aid to primary and secondary schools is now coming in for renewed study. This has been blocked for years by differences between Protestants and Roman Catholics over federal aid to public but not to private schools.

Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist, suggested that instead of a broad bill applying federal aid to all public schools in all states, the problem should be attacked as an emergency measure dealing first with the very worst problems in the nation.

"Why don't we select, beginning next year," he said, "the 100 lowest income areas and designate them as special educational districts? They would then be equipped or reequipped with a truly excellent and comprehensive school plant..."

It is interesting that Abraham Ribicoff, when he was Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, put forth roughly the same idea of an emergency educational plan to be financed by the federal government, like any other national emergency, before the Congress. It even reached the point where a majority of the rules committee was for it, but it finally got lost in the shuffle.

There is, however, a new atmosphere now, a more receptive mood, a greater willingness to look for ways out of old dilemmas. Accordingly, Galbraith's idea is now likely to get a better hearing than Ribicoff's did just two years ago.

More than this, there is a feeling that it is both necessary and possible to give a higher priority in time and money to domestic affairs, without affecting the security of the country or the alliance.

Some people have felt this was true for quite a while, but policies have a life of their own and often continue long after the conditions that produced them have changed.

The shock of President Kennedy's death, however, has startled the capital out of many assumptions, and created a new receptivity for new ideas and a new concern for the nation.

Kremlin Hierarchy Trims Khrush's Budget Request

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Premier Khrushchev appears to have won only a partial victory with the new Soviet budget, possibly through compromise after a clash in the Kremlin hierarchy.

The battle may not be over. Some oddities about the Soviet budget session suggest that Khrushchev is encountering opposition.

The big argument seems to revolve about defense spending. The Supreme Soviet—a rubber-stamp parliament—was told Monday that the defense budget is being cut next year by the equivalent of $666 million. Actually, that is not much of a cut. And in the Soviet budget it is impossible to determine what money appropriated under other titles goes toward defense.

When relations between the United States and the Soviet Union are bad, the Soviet military budget can be expected to go up. The Soviet people know that deep international crises mean little hope for abundant consumer goods. Therefore, reductions of tension are popular.

Khrushchev made points with the Soviet public this year by reaching agreement with the United States and Britain on a limited ban on nuclear tests. If he then attempted to head toward other agreements, he seemed to run into some stony opposition.

A curious tug-and-pull in Soviet foreign policy this year was reflected by shifts in emphasis. Sometimes the stress was on agreements, reduction of military budgets and disarmament. At other times these purported aims were pushed into the background in favor of aggressive talk about the Berlin-German questions and the tensions in the Far East.

Such developments as the arrest of an American professor as a spy and a series of incidents on the Berlin Autobahn could have been the work of those resisting a lessening of tensions. Khrushchev, seeking a respite sufficient to permit massive concentration on the economy, appeared to intervene personally to prevent development of too critical an international atmosphere.

There is other evidence of behind-scenes tussles. Khrushchev's program for vastly increased fertilizer production to attack agriculture's ailments was openly criticized by a group of economists, who may have been egged on by powerful forces. They advanced valid-sounding arguments against so heavy a fertilizer investment while the U.S.S.R. still lacks sufficient labor and transport to get it to the farms and apply it to the land.

Khrushchev advocated a program which envisaged spending the equivalent of $46 billion over seven years on the chemical industry. He came out of the inner party debate with appropriations for 1964-65 totaling only about a tenth of that.

Santa Raises Too Much Dust

NEW YORK (AP) — Santa Claus was cited for raising too much dust in Times Square Monday.

Clarence (Slim) Williamson, 36, a laborer helping rebuild the Times Tower, was dressed in a Santa suit and beard at the suggestion of his employer, the Wrecking Corp. of America.

He got a ticket from Patrolman Edward Kocienda for "loading building debris from a chute onto a truck without wetting the debris." A company spokesman said the water pipes were frozen.

Champion Paper Units Form Single Company

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Four subsidiaries of Champion Papers, Inc., that make packaging products have been put together to form Champion Packages Co.

The new firm, with headquarters in Chicago, will run the 13 plants of Dairypak, Inc., Cleveland; Southern Paper Box Co., Hickory, N. C.; Butler Cartons Co., Morristown, N.J., and Midwest Pack, Inc., Belvidere, Ill.

THE TORCH of welder Al Hines of Collinswood, Okla., forms a Christmas star as he works near Monticello with a crew laying a natural gas pipeline in Wisconsin.

Theater Popcorn Helps Yeggs Collect $6000

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A drive-in theater is short two essential items today—cash and popcorn.

Detectives said burglars covered floors and concrete walks with popcorn kernels to make things easier when they wheeled out a 350-pound safe containing $6,000 from the theater office.

The kernels acted like ball bearings.

Four Gospels of Christmas

Mark Reports Life of Christ As Believer in Direct Action

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Apostle Mark's description of the life of Christ is one of direct action, the straightforward thunder of a mighty step on earth. Mark's source was Peter, also a man of direct action. This is the third in a series of articles on the composition of the original stories of Christmas.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Listening to the stalwart old fisherman, Simon Peter, it sometimes was hard to tell the exact sequence of events. Mark desired to set them down in rightful order, as truly as he could.

Yet much remained strange and overwhelming. Whither the end? And how the beginning?

"My son," the aging apostle said, spreading his arms like twin spurs on a mast, "once we had not received mercy, but now we have received mercy." His eyes glowed in his wrinkled, windburned face.

Mark sat on a three-legged stool, with a waxed tablet on his lap, a stylus motionless in his hand, waiting for Peter to continue.

"We did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ," he said stoutly. "We were eye-witnesses of his majesty."

The scene was in Rome, in the time of the Emperor Nero.

"Do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that comes," Peter said "if one suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed."

Mark realized that ominous portents were abroad. Already many believers had died or been imprisoned simply for "the name's sake." It was this, in part, that gave urgency to completion of the book.

Elders and deacons of various congregations, when he had been in Antioch and Corinth and now in Rome, had besought him as assistant to Peter, to record the chief apostle's own account of the time of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Peter himself lacked patience or training for the task, but none knew so well the astounding manifestations. He was a great talker with a sharp memory, but no writer.

It fell to Mark to set down these remembrances for the "followers of the way." Yet a question beset Mark's work—What were the origins of Jesus? From whence did He come?

Peter dwelt on the resultant action, but not on background or explanations.

And Mark shunned any conjectures. An elder of the period is quoted in an ancient document: "Mark, having become interpreter to Peter kept a single view in aim, not to omit anything of what he heard, or to state anything falsely."

The year now was in the middle of the first century. While Mark's Gospel may have been compiled as early as 40 A.D., about 10 years after the Crucifixion and Resurrection, the predominant evidence puts it between 50 and 62 A.D.

Nero had become emperor in 54 A. D. after his mother, Agrippina, plotted the poisoning of his predecessor, Claudius. Thereafter, the vain, erratic Nero had her and various other members of his family murdered.

Dire reckoning stalked those mockingly dubbed the "Christians" or "the third race," neither Jew nor Gentile, and the worst was yet to come.

The Apostle Paul had been stoned, flogged and kept in chains for two years at the foot of the Caelian Hill. Even before, the Apostle James was beheaded in Palestine; Stephen was fatally stoned; Jesus' kinsman, another James, was hurled from a temple wall and clubbed to death. Peter had broken jail.

Yet the tidings spread, penetrating even the imperial household and legions, among freedmen and slaves.

Mark himself had not been among the close circle around Jesus, but Mark's mother, Mary Bath-Nabas, a wealthy Jerusalem widow, had provided her large house as a meeting place for the disciples. Mark had been a boy then.

He recalled the suspenseful hours of their visits, especially that night of the Last Supper, when he followed them to the lonely garden of Gethsemane, invaded suddenly by flaring lights, curt voices and Roman constabulary.

Later, in manhood, he had traveled as an evangelist with Paul and his uncle, Bar-Nabas.

Mark, even with his years of labor for the cause, still depended on Peter for his first-hand narrative of the divine visitation.

The two weaved unheeded through Rome's crowded streets.

Here and there, they slipped into a humble abode, a quiet synagogue, or climbed a hill to a private grotto, for talk, hymns and prayer. "Grace be unto you," Peter would sing out to the little flocks. Whatever the circumstance, Mark added to his notes.

At length, Mark was dispatched to Alexandria, bidding farewell to Peter and other workers in Rome—Luke, Silvanus, Timothy. Not long thence, in the wake of the great fire of July, 64 A. D., Nero unleashed massive violence against Christians.

Hundreds were thrown to wild beasts, impaled on horns of bulls, dragged by horses, doused with oil and publicly burned.

Stiffer Loan Rule Opposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Savings and Loan League reported today that it had filed a protest with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington on the proposed new federal regulations demanding stiffer reserve requirements for savings and loan firms.

Joseph E. Linville, executive secretary of the league, said the action was taken after league members had discussed the proposal.

He noted that the league shares the federal board's concern over operations which tend to dilute the reserve ratio of insured savings and loan associations, and that the Ohio league "has constantly fostered a policy of building high reserves." The basis of its protest, he said, is that the league feels the proposal would fail to accomplish the purpose for which it is intended.

HOW TO MAKE A MILLION $$

Q. I have tried to stop smoking but to no avail. Is there a drug that would dull my desire for tobacco?

A. We know of no drug that will safely and effectively dull the taste for tobacco. If such a drug is ever developed, the discoverer would be well on his way to making a million dollars.

FLAVOR WITHOUT FEAR

Q. I recently read in a medical book that the food additive, monosodium glutamate, produces stomach irritation and cancer. If this is true, why isn't its use prohibited?

A. Because the statement is not true. Monosodium glutamate is perfectly safe to use.

MALE MENOPAUSE?

Q. Do men go through the change of life like women do?

A. No. There is some adjustment in hormone secretion as men grow older, but it is not as abrupt as in women.

The true measure of the worth of prescribed medicine lies not in dollars and cents, but in the faster relief from pain and speedier recovery it provides.

Theater Popcorn Helps Yeggs Collect $6000

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A drive-in theater is short two essential items today—cash and popcorn.

Detectives said burglars covered floors and concrete walks with popcorn kernels to make things easier when they wheeled out a 350-pound safe containing $6,000 from the theater office.

The kernels acted like ball bearings.

Four Gospels of Christmas

Mark Reports Life of Christ As Believer in Direct Action

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Apostle Mark's description of the life of Christ is one of direct action, the straightforward thunder of a mighty step on earth. Mark's source was Peter, also a man of direct action. This is the third in a series of articles on the composition of the original stories of Christmas.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Listening to the stalwart old fisherman, Simon Peter, it sometimes was hard to tell the exact sequence of events. Mark desired to set them down in rightful order, as truly as he could.

Yet much remained strange and overwhelming. Whither the end? And how the beginning? "My son," the aging apostle said, spreading his arms like twin spurs on a mast, "once we had not received mercy, but now we have received mercy. His eyes glowed in his wrinkled, windburned face.

Mark sat on a three-legged stool, with a waxed tablet on his lap, a stylus motionless in his hand, waiting for Peter to continue.

"We did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ," he said stoutly. "We were eye-witnesses of his majesty."

The scene was in Rome, in the time of the Emperor Nero.

"Do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that comes," Peter said "if one suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed."

Mark realized that ominous portents were abroad. Already many believers had died or been imprisoned simply for "the name's sake." It was this, in part, that gave urgency to completion of the book.

Elders and deacons of various congregations, when he had been in Antioch and Corinth and now in Rome, had besought him as assistant to Peter, to record the chief apostle's own account of the time of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Peter himself lacked patience or training for the task, but none knew so well the astounding manifestations. He was a great talker with a sharp memory, but no writer.

It fell to Mark to set down these remembrances for the "followers of the way." Yet a question beset Mark's work—What were the origins of Jesus? From whence did He come?

Peter dwelt on the resultant action, but not on background or explanations.

And Mark shunned any conjectures. An elder of the period is quoted in an ancient document: "Mark, having become interpreter to Peter kept a single view in aim, not to omit anything of what he heard, or to state anything falsely."

The year now was in the middle of the first century. While Mark's Gospel may have been compiled as early as 40 A.D., about 10 years after the Crucifixion and Resurrection, the predominant evidence puts it between 50 and 62 A.D.

Nero had become emperor in 54 A. D. after his mother, Agrippina, plotted the poisoning of his predecessor, Claudius. Thereafter, the vain, erratic Nero had her and various other members of his family murdered.

Dire reckoning stalked those mockingly dubbed the "Christians" or "the third race," neither Jew nor Gentile, and the worst was yet to come.

The Apostle Paul had been stoned, flogged and kept in chains for two years at the foot of the Caelian Hill. Even before, the Apostle James was beheaded in Palestine; Stephen was fatally stoned; Jesus' kinsman, another James was hurled from a temple wall and clubbed to death. Peter had broken jail.

Yet the tidings spread, penetrating even the imperial household and legions, among freedmen and slaves.

Mark himself had not been among the close circle around Jesus, but Mark's mother, Mary Bath-Nabas, a wealthy Jerusalem widow, had provided her large house as a meeting place for the disciples. Mark had been a boy then.

He recalled the suspenseful hours of their visits, especially that night of the Last Supper, when he followed them to the lonely garden of Gethesmane, invaded suddenly by flaring lights, curt voices and Roman constabulary.

Later, in manhood, he had traveled as an evangelist with Paul and his uncle, Bar-Nabas.

Mark, even with his years of labor for the cause, still depended on Peter for his first-hand narrative of the divine visitation.

The two weaved unheeded through Rome's crowded streets.

Here and there, they slipped into a humble abode, a quiet synagogue, or climbed a hill to a private grotto, for talk, hymns and prayer. "Grace be unto you," Peter would sing out to the little flocks. Whatever the circumstance, Mark added to his notes.

At length, Mark was dispatched to Alexandria, bidding farewell to Peter and other workers in Rome—Luke, Silvanus, Timothy. Not long thence, in the wake of the great fire of July, 64 A. D., Nero unleashed massive violence against Christians.

Hundreds were thrown to wild beasts, impaled on horns of bulls, dragged by horses, doused with oil and publicly burned.

Stiffer Loan Rule Opposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Savings and Loan League reported today that it had filed a protest with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington on the proposed new federal regulations demanding stiffer reserve requirements for savings and loan firms.

Joseph E. Linville, executive secretary of the league, said the action was taken after league members had discussed the proposal.

He noted that the league shares the federal board's concern over operations which tend to dilute the reserve ratio of insured savings and loan associations, and that the Ohio league "has constantly fostered a policy of building high reserves." The basis of its protest, he said, is that the league feels the proposal would fail to accomplish the purpose for which it is intended.

HOW TO MAKE A MILLION $$

Q. I have tried to stop smoking but to no avail. Is there a drug that would dull my desire for tobacco?

A. We know of no drug that will safely and effectively dull the taste for tobacco. If such a drug is ever developed, the discoverer would be well on his way to making a million dollars.

FLAVOR WITHOUT FEAR

Q. I recently read in a medical book that the food additive, monosodium glutamate, produces stomach irritation and cancer. If this is true, why isn't its use prohibited?

A. Because the statement is not true. Monosodium glutamate is perfectly safe to use.

MALE MENOPAUSE?

Q. Do men go through the change of life like women do?

A. No. There is some adjustment in hormone secretion as men grow older, but it is not as abrupt as in women.

The true measure of the worth of prescribed medicine lies not in dollars and cents, but in the faster relief from pain and speedier recovery it provides.

Senior Girls Eligible for Competition

Circleville and Pickaway County high school senior girls are eligible to compete in the Ohio Junior Miss Contest, preliminary phase of the Mobile, Ala., America Junior Miss contest.

The contest will be held 2 p. m. Jan. 12 at the Whetstone Recreation Center, Columbus. Senior girls must be between the ages of 16 as of March 20, 1964, and not exceeding 19 prior to March 21, 1964.

Competition will be based on leadership, scholastic achievement, citizenship, poise and personality as well as a three-minute talent skit. Local and national winners will share scholarships totaling more than $100,000.

Applications may be obtained from the Noni School of Charm and Modeling, 209 S. High St., Columbus. Mrs. Clarence Neme-maker, the school's owner-director, emphasizes that her annual search for the nation's ideal senior girl is not a beauty contest. Bathing suit appearances are forbidden.

Further information may be obtained from the Noni School. Bobby Brooks Inc., Coca Cola and Eastman Kodak Co. are the national sponsors.

Programs Slated At Jefferson Church

A Christmas pageant titled "The Cradle" will be presented by the young people of the Jefferson Christian Church at 7 p. m. Saturday.

The play is a drama of Biblical times and centers around a wealthy Jew, who has eccentric ideas as to how to prepare for the birth of the Messiah. Dwight and Claudette Hershey are the directors.

On Sunday morning, following the Sunday School hour, a program will be presented by youth groups of the church. Mrs. Joy Rooker, department superintendent, will be in charge.

The public is invited to both programs.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's administration, like President John F. Kennedy's, is reconciled to a long wait before there can be hope of dealing with Red China in a reasonable and peaceful way.

The hope, such as it is, apparently is based on the idea that when the present leaders of China die out the men who take over — younger men just below the top now — will be more realistic about the world they live in.

This was the essence of a talk made a few days ago by Roger Hilsman, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

It is not a new idea in history that the pioneers in a political movement are often impelled by fanaticism to convert and dominate and that the zeal remains undiminished in their lifetime. The result is extremism.

The early revolutionary has nothing to lose but his life, which he is willing to lose, along with that of everyone else. If death doesn't stop him he may create a new order. This is what his successors inherit.

Now they have more to lose than their lives in any romantic or reckless adventure, certainly in a nuclear time like this. The realization has a sobering and conservative effect.

The Red Chinese leader, Mao Tze-tung, and the other top men still around him, all aging now, were the pioneers, the fanatics, who began the Chinese revolution back in the 1920s and never stopped until they won in 1949.

They are beginning to die out. It was on their successors that Hilsman seemed to pin his hope. But until there is evidence of change, Hilsman said, this country will continue its policy of "strength and firmness," which, in blunter language, means stiff-arming China.

Although real peace with Russia is in the future, the relationship with the Soviets is lot better than it was and far better than it is with Red China.

But even the present Chinese leadership seems to be taking a more realistic view, at least about its capabilities. The Red Chinese foreign minister, Chen Yi, recently told an Australian television producer in an interview:

China needs 100 years to become a modern state.

Rhodes Leaves Gate Open For U.S. Development Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has a head start on its own toward objectives of the Appalachian Mountain Redevelopment Program, state officials asserted today.

But they insist that doesn't mean they plan to stand aloof from the multibillion-dollar program if Ohio could benefit through participation.

A score of Southeast Ohio counties are included in the federal plan to stimulate the economy in hard-pressed mountain areas ranging from Pennsylvania to Georgia and Alabama.

All of West Virginia and parts of nine other states are included in the region.

Ohio counties with a population of about 744,000 in the region are Adams, Athens, Belmont, Clermont, Gallia, Guernsey, Highland, Hocking, Jackson, Lawrence, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Noble, Pike, Ross, Scioto, Vinton and Washington.

The late President John F. Kennedy contemplated submission of the redevelopment program to Congress, President

Johnson has yet to decide whether to follow through.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, Development Director George Wilson and Natural Resources Director Fred Morr are looking into the federal plan.

Rhodes termed erroneous a published report that Ohio appeared cool toward the program.

"We would be interested if it would not cost Ohio more than the benefit from participation," Rhodes said.

The governor said his administration has its own program going for development of Southeast Ohio.

The Buckeye program includes efforts to develop and expand industry for more jobs, training schools to enhance employment skills, and highway and park development to attract tourists to the area.

An office building of the old Globe Iron Co. in Jackson is being prepared for a start next month of training courses for about 900 unemployed persons next year.

Courses will be open to adults and young people for training as automobile mechanics, welders, clerks, nurses aides and more than a dozen other activities. They will be conducted by the Jackson Board of Education under contract with the State Division of Vocational Education. The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation will select trainees.

Meanwhile, the state officials are going over the program drafted by a federal team under the direction of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., under-secretary of commerce.

That team reported after a tour of mountain states and conferences with governors and local officials.

Their aim is to exploit mining, forestry and agricultural resources of the region through a joint federal-state development corporation. Loans were proposed from federal or state appropriated funds or from federally guaranteed bonds issued to finance activities with an "anticipated return."

Pope Books 1964 Visit Into India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Pope Paul VI has accepted an invitation to visit India for his second break with the tradition against papal travel abroad, officials said Tuesday night.

The Pope will make a pilgrimage to the Holy Land Jan. 4-6, ending a period of 150 years in which papal travel has been restricted to Italy.

Officials at the Vatican declined to confirm the report, but Vatican circles said there was a good chance Pope Paul might attend the International Eucharistic Congress in Bombay next November.

Indian sources said the invitation was extended by President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan through India's envoy at the Vatican.

Predominantly Hindu India has seven million Roman Catholics, including many in Bombay.

In recent years popes have sent personal messages to eucharistic congresses. Pope John XIII addressed the last congress, in Munich, Germany, by a telephone hookup.

It has been traditional for the Pope to delegate a cardinal to represent him at the congresses. With the unwritten restriction on foreign travel broken by the Holy Land pilgrimage, there would be no reason for Pope Paul not to attend the Bombay congress.

State Helps Ohio Village Get Water

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Faced with only enough water to last until Monday, the nearby village of Spencer is receiving state help for a 2.7-mile pipeline leading from the Black River.

In response to an appeal from Mayor Ross Garn, Gov. James A. Rhodes directed Adj. Gen. Erwin C. Hostetler Tuesday to have his Civil Defense Division help relieve the shortage in the community of 750.

The State Highway Department was to begin today trucking a dismantled eight-inch pipeline from the Ohio Civil Defense storage depot at Marion to Spencer.

Garn said the pipe, in 20-foot sections, will be assembled by 55 volunteers. He said the job should be finished in 24 hours. With the aid of several pumps, also furnished by the Civil Defense Division, the line should be able to deliver two million gallons of water a day into Spencer's two reservoirs, officials said.

The reservoirs are south of here along Ohio 301. One is bone dry and the other contains only enough water to last until Monday at the latest, Garn said.

The Civil Defense Division will supervise the laying of the water line, which will run roughly along Ohio 162.

Before this year's punishing drought began, the village reservoirs were filled with 150 million gallons of water. Residents have cut their water usage by 10,000 gallons a day to 35,000 gallons.

No Christmas Tree Put Up By Kennedys

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The $400,000 oceanfront mansion where Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children will spend the holidays has eight bedrooms, nine servants rooms, an inside garden, and a 75-foot heated swimming pool. But no Christmas tree.

It's secluded behind a 10-foot-high stone wall and a thicket of palms. A guard stands at the gate. This Christmas, as on two past, there will be Secret Service men on the grounds.

The Kennedys leased the home in 1961. The late President could not cram his Secret Servicemen, aides and equipment into the nearby home of his father, Joseph P. Kennedy. The Kennedys returned in 1962. The mansion was designed in 1939 for the late financier Charles Ulrich Bay. The current owner is millionaire Col. C. Michael Paul, longtime friend of the Kennedy family.

Col. Paul referred modestly to his home as "one okay for a generously sized family. Rooms? Oh, I have more than I should have. I've really lost count, but I have lots."

There's lots of room for children's play, 400 feet of private beach, and a spacious lawn, but no Christmas tree?

"Maybe," said a yard man, "they're waiting for some children."

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's administration, like President John F. Kennedy's, is reconciled to a long wait before there can be hope of dealing with Red China in a reasonable and peaceful way.

The hope, such as it is, apparently is based on the idea that when the present leaders of China die out the men who take over — younger men just below the top now — will be more realistic about the world they live in.

This was the essence of a talk made a few days ago by Roger Hillsman, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

It is not a new idea in history that the pioneers in a political movement are often impelled by fanaticism to convert and dominate and that the zeal remains undiminished in their lifetime. The result is extremism.

The early revolutionary has nothing to lose but his life, which he is willing to lose, along with that of everyone else. If death doesn't stop him he may create a new order. This is what his successors inherit.

Now they have more to lose than their lives in any romantic or reckless adventure, certainly in a nuclear time like this. The realization has a sobering and conservative effect.

The Red Chinese leader, Mao Tze-tung, and the other top men still around him, all aging now, were the pioneers, the fanatics, who began the Chinese revolution back in the 1920s and never stopped until they won in 1949.

They are beginning to die out. It was on their successors that Hillsman seemed to pin his hope. But until there is evidence of change, Hillsman said, this country will continue its policy of "strength and firmness," which, in blunter language, means stiff-arming China.

Although real peace with Russia is in the future, the relationship with the Soviets is lot better than it was and far better than it is with Red China.

But even the present Chinese leadership seems to be taking a more realistic view, at least about its capabilities. The Red Chinese foreign minister, Chen Yi, recently told an Australian television producer in an interview:

China needs 100 years to become a modern state.

Rhodes Leaves Gate Open For U.S. Development Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has a head start on its own toward objectives of the Appalachian Mountain Redevelopment Program, state officials asserted today.

But they insist that doesn't mean they plan to stand aloof from the multimillion-dollar program if Ohio could benefit through participation.

A score of Southeast Ohio counties are included in the federal plan to stimulate the economy in hard-pressed mountain areas ranging from Pennsylvania to Georgia and Alabama. All of West Virginia and parts of nine other states are included in the region.

Ohio counties with a population of about 744,000 in the region are Adams, Athens, Belmont, Clermont, Gallia, Guernsey, Highland, Hocking, Jackson, Lawrence, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Noble, Pike, Ross, Scioto, Vinton and Washington.

The late President John F. Kennedy contemplated submission of the redevelopment program to Congress, President

Johnson has yet to decide whether to follow through.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, Development Director George Wilson and Natural Resources Director Fred Morr are looking into the federal plan.

Rhodes termed erroneous a published report that Ohio appeared cool toward the program.

"We would be interested if it would not cost Ohio more than the benefit from participation," Rhodes said.

The governor said his administration has its own program going for development of Southeast Ohio.

The Buckeye program includes efforts to develop and expand industry for more jobs, training schools to enhance employment skills, and highway and park development to attract tourists to the area.

An office building of the old Globe Iron Co. in Jackson is being prepared for a start next month of training courses for about 900 unemployed persons next year.

Courses will be open to adults and young people for training as automobile mechanics, welders, clerks, nurses aides and more than a dozen other activities. They will be conducted by the Jackson Board of Education under contract with the State Division of Vocational Education. The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation will select trainees.

Meanwhile, the state officials are going over the program drafted by a federal team under the direction of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., under-secretary of commerce.

That team reported after a tour of mountain states and conferences with governors and local officials.

Their aim is to exploit mining, forestry and agricultural resources of the region through a joint federal-state development corporation. Loans were proposed from federal or state appropriated funds or from federally guaranteed bonds issued to finance activities with an "anticipated return."

Pope Books 1964 Visit Into India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Pope Paul VI has accepted an invitation to visit India for his second break with the tradition against papal travel abroad, officials said Tuesday night.

Akron Turncoat Fined $10 in Assault Case

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Lowell D. Skinner was fined $10 and costs Tuesday in Barberton Municipal Court for assaulting a Norton Village man Sept. 25.

Skinner, 32, Korean War turncoat who returned to this country earlier this year, faces another hearing on similar charges filed last month by a Copley man. In addition, he is free under bond on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, which stems from a Nov. 18 shooting incident. Skinner faces grand jury action on that charge.

The Pope will make a pilgrimage to the Holy Land Jan. 4-6, ending a period of 150 years in which papal travel has been restricted to Italy.

Officials at the Vatican declined to confirm the report, but Vatican circles said there was a good chance Pope Paul might attend the International Eucharistic Congress in Bombay next November.

Indian sources said the invitation was extended by President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan through India's envoy at the Vatican.

Predominantly Hindu India has seven million Roman Catholics, including many in Bombay.

In recent years popes have sent personal messages to eucharistic congresses. Pope John XIII addressed the last congress, in Munich, Germany, by a telephone hookup.

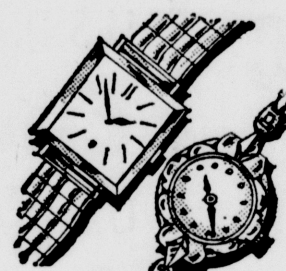

It has been traditional for the Pope to delegate a cardinal to represent him at the congresses. With the unwritten restriction on foreign travel broken by the Holy Land pilgrimage, there would be no reason for Pope Paul not to attend the Bombay congress.

Retiring Rickover To Stay on Job

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson nominated Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover today for retirement at his present three-star rank. But the Navy is going to keep its controversial nuclear reactor expert on the job.

Rickover, who fought for nuclear power in the fleet, is called the father of the nuclear submarine.

White House officials said he reached retirement age of 62 on Jan. 27, 1962 but was retained on active duty for two more years. Under existing law, he must retire Feb. 1. But he still can be recalled to active duty, and this will be done.

Malcolm Kilduff, a White House press secretary, explained:

"In view of Rickover's unique qualification and his long experience in the field of nuclear reactor development, the secretary of Navy (Paul Nitze) plans to further retain him on active duty after his name is placed on the retirement list."

NO WEAKENING — Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrives at NATO headquarters in Paris for the opening session of the Council of Ministers meeting. Rusk reportedly brought a message from President Johnson saying there is no weakening of U.S. resolve to defend Europe.

Santa and the Haunted House

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The children arrived in Santa Land just in time to save Santa from eating Nog's cake. Santa decided to go back with them and settle things with Nog.

CHAPTER 14 THE PURPLE STONE

The charm which Santa showed the children was a purple stone, smooth to the touch and no longer than Miss Jo's thumb.

"The Queen Fairy gave me this long ago," Santa told the children. "With it in my hand I can turn into any shape I wish. It has been very useful to me for I have often had to change into a broom to get down small chimneys and into a mouse when a child has come upon me filling his stockings."

"You're only fooling!" said Miss Jo uncertainly.

"Indeed I am not," said Santa. "In fact I shall change now into a hummingbird and I will change you also into hummingbirds and we will fly directly to the Kingdom of Poo."

With that he rubbed the purple stone and became a hummingbird. Before the children could recover from their astonishment, they too had become birds — a little one that was Jeremy, a middle-size one that was Sissy and a teeny tiny one that was Miss Jo. They spread their wings and flew once around the room and then they followed Santa through a crack in the window and soared away from Santa Land.

Hummingbirds can fly faster than the eye can follow and if they are charmed they can fly faster than the time it takes to tell about it. So it was that Santa and the three children arrived before dawn on Burning Tree Road in the Kingdom of Poo.

As soon as they lighted, they all turned back into their natural shapes and Santa said, "You children go home now for Nog can be very troublesome and it is best that I handle this by myself."

No matter how much they begged and argued he would not let them stay so they left him and walked away. But as soon as Santa's back was turned, the children left the road and, ducking from bush to bush, followed Santa to the Haunted House.

Santa walked right up to the house—brave as could be—and went right through the door without knocking or calling out or anything. The children streaked around the side of the house and standing on tiptoe peered through a broken window, scarcely daring to breathe.

There was purple faces, toothless, hairless, bottle-shaped Nog sitting on a box and getting ready to eat his breakfast which was fried hoydoy. In walked Santa and Nog couldn't believe his eyes. He fell over backwards and the hoydoy splattered on the floor. Nog scrambled to his feet and said, "I thought you were dead."

"No," said Santa. "I didn't eat your cake so I'm feeling very well but I've come to have a talk with you. You just can't go on acting like this. Someone may get hurt."

"Talk," said Nog. "That's nothing. Talk all you want. It can't hurt me."

"Well," said Santa, taking out the purple stone, "I also have a charm. I can change you or me into any shape I wish so you had better be careful and behave yourself."

"Ha!" said Nog defiantly. "I don't believe it. Let me see you turn yourself into an old woman for instance."

"Very well," said Santa. "I'll show you."

He rubbed the stone and instantly he was an old, old woman, bent and crippled, shaking all over.

"See," said Santa in the woman's quavering voice. "Now you know what I can do to you."

"Not now!" cried Nog and before the old woman could change shape, Nog snatched the purple stone from her doddering fingers.

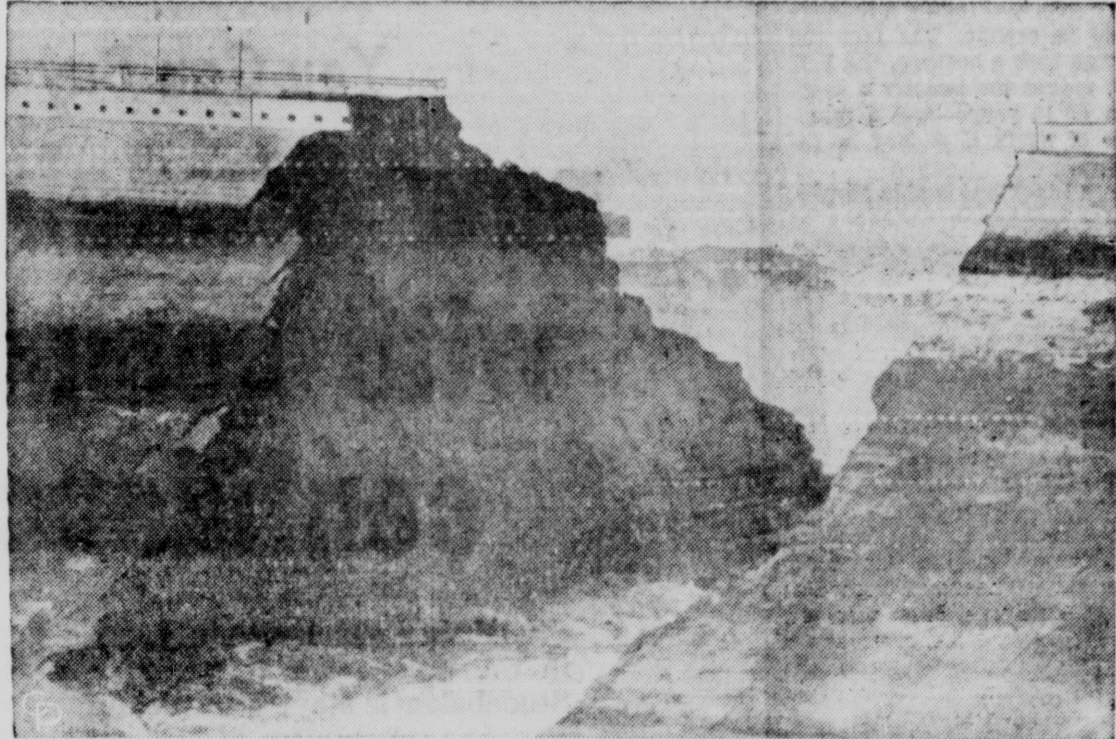

"Watch me!" he cried.

He rubbed the stone gleefully in his own bony fingers and suddenly he himself was Santa Claus!

Sour apples for the most uncooperative went to Ann-Margret and James Franciscus.

LONDON (AP)—Moise Tshombe, former president of Katanga, has been refused a visa to enter Britain, say informed sources.

A Congolese government statement that Tshombe's passport is invalid apparently was the reason for the rejection, the sources said. The British Foreign Office declined to comment.

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—President Urho Kekkonen named economist Reino Lehto, 65, to head a nonpolitical, caretaker government today.

Sidney Builder Turns to Crime

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—"Tell me, Tom, why did I do it?" a prominent Sidney building contractor asked city patrolman Tom Hibner after the businessman and a woman hostage were wounded in a bank robbery attempt.

"I got a good business going, why did I do it?" cried Lloyd Blackford, 33.

Until Blackford spoke, Hibner said, he hadn't recognized him although "I have known him since he was a little child."

Small wonder. The armed holdup man Tuesday was wearing a woman's blonde wig and woman's clothing, makeup and dark glasses.

Shot in the neck, Blackford was to undergo surgery today in Wilson Memorial Hospital. Neither he nor the hostage, Mrs. Dale Anderson, 26, of Sidney, who was shot in the elbow as police intercepted the robber, was injured critically.

A burglar alarm touched off by a janitor at the Michigan Street branch of the First National Exchange Bank brought officers on the scene quickly after the holdup in which an undetermined amount of money was taken in bags.

Patrolmen in the first cruiser to arrive spotted the robber fleeing.

He grabbed Mrs. Anderson, and according to Police Chief L. Warner, fired four times at the police. Chief Warner was hit as he emerged from a patrol car, shotgun in hand, but escaped injury because the bullet struck his holstered revolver.

Hibner then fired in Blackford's direction. The officer said he aimed over the fugitive's head to stop him when he started to run, but one pellet caught him in the back of the neck.

By then, Blackford had released Mrs. Anderson — "So we could kill him," Hibner said Blackford told him.

The contractor, well known, married and as far as is known prosperous, was placed under heavy guard after being removed to the hospital.

The FBI has charged him with robbing a bank; doing so with a gun, and taking a hostage to aid in escape. The fact the gunman took a hostage, the FBI said, makes the penalty a minimum of 10 years—and a maximum of death if a jury so directs.

When Blackford is able physically, he is to be arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Robert Snell in Dayton. Bond has been recommended at $25,000.

The undisclosed bank haul was all recovered, Chief Warner said.

The second transfer of ownership involves Sons Bar and Grill, 116 S. Court St., to Sherco Inc. The application was filed Dec. 13, 1963.

Before issuing or denying permits or transfers the department makes a thorough investigation into the legal qualifications of the applicant and premises. If no major problems are encountered in the processing, it takes a minimum of 30 days to make a final disposition of an application.

Extradition Fight Lost By Hoosier

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A new chapter was scheduled to begin today in the case of handyman Grover Jones, 54, his long fight against extradition at an end.

The scene shifted to Celina, Tenn., where the one-time Ohioan faces a second-degree murder charge.

Jones, accused in the hit-skip traffic death of Newt Lee near Celina on Dec. 31, 1944, was to be driven south today to surrender to authorities. His return to Tennessee climaxes, for the moment, an 18-year, 70,000-mile search by Lee's son, Welby, 50, for the man he alleges ran down his father.

Jones, who at one time lived in Stark County, Ohio, was arrested here several months ago. Gov. Matthew E. Welsh ordered his extradition Oct. 18 but Jones' attorneys had been fighting the order.

Finally — with Jones free on bond pending a hearing set here Dec. 23 on an assault and battery charge—his attorneys, James G. Nedeft and William S. Mercuri, said they would drive Jones to Celina today for his surrender.

The Indianapolis case involves the molesting of a 10-year-old girl.

Extradition Fight Lost By Hoosier

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A new chapter was scheduled to begin today in the case of handyman Grover Jones, 54, his long fight against extradition to an end.

The scene shifted to Celina, Tenn., where the one-time Ohioan faces a second-degree murder charge.

Jones, accused in the hit-skip traffic death of New Lee near Celina on Dec. 31, 1944, was to be driven south today to surrender to authorities. His return to Tennessee climaxes, for the moment, an 18-year, 70,000-mile search by Lee's son, Welby, 50, for the man he alleges ran down his father.

Jones, who at one time lived in Stark County, Ohio, was arrested here several months ago. Gov. Matthew E. Welsh ordered his extradition Oct. 18 but Jones' attorneys had been fighting the order.

Finally — with Jones free on bond pending a hearing set here Dec. 23 on an assault and battery charge — his attorneys, James G. Nedeff and William S. Mercuri, said they would drive Jones to Celina today for his surrender.

The Indianapolis case involves the molesting of a 10-year-old girl.

OU Chalks 6th Straight As Vital Road Tilts Loom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Several of Ohio's elite in major college basketball go into action tonight, hoping to carry the state's banner as well as Ohio University did in chalking up its sixth victory without a loss Tuesday night.

The Bobcats slipped past St. John's of Brooklyn in Gotham, 58-54, and hope to add Army's Cadet's to their list of victims today. Cincinnati is at Colorado, Miami at Purdue and Toledo at Villanova in other key road tests for Ohio squads tonight.

The men of Athens led St. John's Redmen 28-21 at the half, stayed off one bid and pulled out to 51-42, then had to fight off a rally that cut the edge to 51-50. Jerry Jackson's 15 points led Ohio U., while Ken McIntyre notched 16 for St. John's—a recent 66-64 loser to Ohio State.

Late Hawk Rush

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco survived a closing-minutes scare Tuesday night and nipped St. Louis, 110-106, in a National Basketball Association cliff-hanger. But the ghost that plagued New York in its 107-103 loss to Detroit was too much for the shock-up Knicks.

Boston curdled Baltimore, 131-114, in the only other game scheduled.

The Warriors blew a 20-point lead in the final eight minutes but hung on to move within 2½ games of the second-place Hawks and within three of Los Angeles' Western Division leaders.

TV High Cagers To Play Saturday

Teays Valley basketball team will play Lakewood of Licking county Saturday in the Viking gymnasium, it was announced today by Russ Gregg.

The game, previously scheduled Nov. 22, had been postponed. The Vikings previously had no contest scheduled for the coming weekend.

Gregg announced two other changes in the Teays Valley schedule. A game with Amanda-Clearcreek, originally slated Feb. 15, has been moved up to Jan. 3.

On Feb. 1, the Vikings will host Williamsport.

Holidays Interrupt Grade Cage Program

The Circleville fifth and sixth grade basketball program will be discontinued during the Christmas Holidays it was announced today by Jim Shaw, CHS reserve cage coach.

There will be no action in the program either Saturday or Dec. 28. On Jan. 4, the program will resume according to Shaw.

Bob Pickett, former Eastern Intercollegiate 175-pound wrestling champion, is in his 14th season coaching Harvard's matmen.

Rupp Plagued By Too Much Cage Talent

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp has problems: He has so many good basketball players he's getting man-sized headaches just trying to decide on a starting line-up.

Rupp's problems were even bigger today with an announcement from the university's dean of men that Mickey Gibson, a highly regarded sophomore, would be eligible for Kentucky's Invitational Tournament this weekend if he makes his grades.

Gibson, who Rupp says is "as good as anyone I've seen at this stage of the game," has been on disciplinary probation.

The 6-foot-3 Gibson scored an average of 23.1 points a game last year as a freshman before being sidelined because of scholastic troubles.

Now that Gibson's eligibility is all but in the bag, Rupp is going to have to find room for him on the second ranked Wildcats front line—and that's not going to be easy.

Playing there now are Cotton Nash and Ted Deeken, the highest one-two scoring punch in Kentucky history, and a sensational sophomore floor leader, Larry Conley.

Nash is averaging 29 points a game, Deeken 22 and Conley 12.

AFL Star Grid Team Is Named

NEW YORK (AP)—Oakland and San Diego, still battling for the Western Division title, placed a total of 11 men on the 22-man All-Star team of the American Football League.

The only unanimous choice was flanker back Lance Galworthy of San Diego.

Coach Al Davis' Oakland Chargers placed split end Art Powell, center Jim Otto and running back Clem Daniels on the offensive team and middle linebacker Archie Matsos and backs Fred Williamson and Tommy Morrow on the defensive eleven.

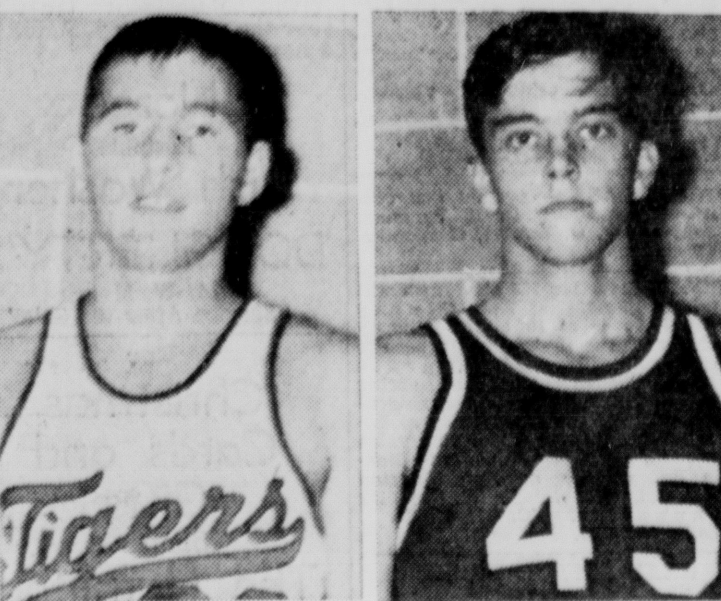

San Diego had three men in the backfield—quarterback Tobin Rote, flanker Alworth and fullback Keith Lincoln—plus offensive tackle Ron Mix on the first offensive team. Earl Faison of the Chargers is the defensive end.

Buffalo, tied with Boston for the Eastern title, had tackle Stew Barber and guard Bill Shaw on the offensive team and tackle Tom Sestak on defense.

Houston's three representatives included guard Bob Talamini and defensive backs Tony Banfield and Freddy Glick. Boston's delegation were Houston Antwine at defensive tackle and Larry Eisenhauer at defensive end.

Kansas City, the 1962 champs as the Dallas Texans, had tight end Fred Arbanas on offense and linebacker E. J. Holub on defense. The New York Jets' only representative is Larry Grantham at linebacker.

TOM SMITH

CHARLES LEWIS

Charlie Lewis and Tom Smith are two senior candidates seeing much action on the Circleville High School basketball team. Smith, 6-feet 3-inches tall, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Smith, 218 E. Union St. He was voted the most valuable player on the CHS basketball team last year as a junior and made honorable mention on the All-South Central Ohio League team. He is a member of the Stooze club. Lewis, 6-feet 4-inches, is out for varsity basketball for the first time this year. He lives with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lewis, 219 Second Ave. He is a member of the CHS Athletic Club.

Tigers Will Face Blue Lions Friday

Both Circleville and Washington C. H. will be battling to get out of the basketball cellar of the South Central Ohio League Friday when the Tigers invade the Blue Lions' den.

The two teams have identical 0-3 records in SCO competition. Miami Trace, also 0-3, is the third team collared with last place in the loop.

The Red and Black Tigers have appeared in seven games this year and have lost all starts. Washington has won only one non-league game from Madison South, a Madison County Class A quintet, in four starts this season.

Circleville's seven-game schedule has been one of the toughest faced by any league team this season. Losses include games with Lancaster and Chillicothe, members of the always tough Central Ohio League; undefeated Teays Valley; and once beaten Reynoldsburg.

IN THE league they have lost to Pleasant View, Hillsboro and Greenfield McClain. All three teams sport veteran alignments and the first two have been tabbed by many as the teams to beat in the league this year.

Pleasant View is the only undefeated team in both league and non-league competition. Tiger cage mentor Don Neff feels his charges need a win to bolster their confidence. In two of their losing games, Hillsboro and Teays Valley, the Tigers turned in outstanding performances, for three and one-half quarters.

The leading scorer for the Tigers is Tom Smith. He has tallied 111 points for an average of 15.8 per game. The only other Circleville cager averaging in the double figure column is John Thomas with 77 points for 11 per game.

Bob Purcell's 67 point total is good for third among Circleville scorers and from there it drops down to Chet Iery's 34 point total.

Washington C. H. is sparked by Tom Townsend, a high scoring guard.

Elsewhere around the South Central Ohio League Greenfield is at Miami Trace, Hillsboro is at Wilmington and Franklin Heights is at Pleasant View.

Navy Loss Voted As Top Upset

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1963 college football season had more upsets than a drunken tight-rope walker. It seemed there were at least a couple a week.

The biggest upset of them all?

A panel of 98 sports writers and sportscasters gave the nod to Southern Methodist's 32-28 triumph over Navy.

A nationwide poll by the Associated Press gave the Mustangs' surprising victory over the second-ranked Midshipmen a slim 28-27 vote edge over UCLA's 14-0 shocker over Rose Bowl-bound Washington.

Former relief ace Luis Arroyo now scouts for the New York Yankees.

PROMOTING HIS OWN FIGHT—Cassius Clay, the heavyweight with the oratory and poetry, starts promoting his own fight with champ Sonny Liston as he takes part in a pre-football game parade in Miami. Clay meets Liston in Miami in late February.

Washington Redskins OK Unprecedented Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill McPeak moved ahead with plans for 1964 today with a vote of confidence from his bosses and more authority than any Washington Redskin coach in history.

McPeak was rehired Monday as coach and general manager of the National Football League team with authority to spend any amount he thinks necessary for player talent and to make any changes he sees fit to build a winner.

It was a far cry from the old days when president George Preston Marshall kept a tight rein on his coaches, even occasionally calling plays over the telephone connected from his box to the Redskin bench.

Often, the colorful, controversial Marshall fired coaches with better records than the 3-11 McPeak's Redskins finished with Sunday.

In 27 seasons since he brought the team here from Boston, Marshall has had 11 coaches.

Marshall, now in his late 60s, has mellowed somewhat as he got older. The headline grabbing feuds with other national figures grew less frequent. And it was Marshall who named McPeak general manager in 1962 and handed the 37-year-old former All-Pro defensive end broad authority in dealing for playing talent.

Marshall is a sick man now, so sick that three of his old friends, Redskin directors C. Leo DeOrsey, Edward Bennett Williams and Milton King, asked a court last week to name them to handle his affairs.

Their petition said Marshall was unable to conduct his affairs properly because he is suffering from cerebral arteriosclerosis and other ailments.

It was DeOrsey, the vice president who is voting Marshall's 51 per cent of Redskin stock, who made the announcement Monday after a three-hour session with McPeak and three other directors, Williams, King and Jack Kent Cooke, Los Angeles sportsman.

Although the Redskins lost on the field, they had their best year in history this past season in attendance, up 50 per cent over 1961 to 303,638 for seven home games.

DeOrsey said McPeak was given a 25 per cent raise in pay, but didn't mention any figures.

The mandate given McPeak included an expansion of the talent scouting program he created almost from scratch in 1961. Washington had fallen far behind other NFL teams in this respect, and as a result had become a chronic loser.

NEW YORK (AP)—The home screens were full of sickness, maladjustment and unhappiness Tuesday night.

"Mr. Novak" struggled nobly for an hour trying to help a disturbed boy from a broken home. At the end, he sadly abandoned his salvage operations—the boy ran away and Mr. Novak went back to classes.

"The Richard Boone Show" a half-hour later on NBC had an interminable, rambling tale about a prize fighter after release from four years in a mental institution. It was full of confusing flashbacks, but apparently he was trying to find himself.

This sad saga was followed immediately on ABC by "The Fugitive," which centered on a boy with a retarded mentality. The boy was suspected of attacking a woman who had been his friend and benefactor.

Unfortunately these are the sort of themes one encounters more often than any others on evening television these days. They may also explain why light-hearted comedy shows are at the very top of the popularity lists. A viewer can feel pretty low after a full evening of vicarious pain and anguish.

CBS has postponed its special, "The Law and Lee Oswald" to Sunday, Dec. 29. Mae West will be making one of her very rare television appearances on an upcoming "Mr. Ed" episode. Adlai E. Stevenson will be next Sunday's "Meet The Press" guest on NBC.

Crews of American television cameramen and reporters will accompany Pope Paul VI on his three-day visit to the Holy Land next month and both CBS and NBC plan special programs. After limping along since September, NBC's new Western, "Temple Houston," has undergone a change of format. The new emphasis is on comedy.

Jack Benny had his annual Christmas shopping show on CBS Tuesday night. It seemed as if I had seen it before—many times. But the cheap jokes, the long pauses were just as amusing as ever. Benny somehow always is.

Recommended tonight—"CBS Reports," 7:30-8:30 EST, Cabinet members including Dean Rusk and Robert McNamara talk about John F. Kennedy, the man and the chief executive.

ONCE AN EAGLE, ALWAYS AN EAGLE — Jack Concannon (right), shown in Newton, Mass., with the Boston College symbol, will continue as an Eagle. The 6-foot, 3-inch, 200-pound senior has signed a one-year contract as quarterback for the Philadelphia Eagles. With him is Jim Miller, head football coach at Boston College.

Cage Scoring Race Is On

Western Michigan
Star Setting Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Attention Nick Werkman and Barry Kramer:

Manny Newsome, a 5-foot-9 sparkplug from Western Michigan may be out to steal the major college scoring crown while returning the title to a 30-point plus scorer.

Werkman averaged 29.5 points a game for Seton Hall last year to 29.3 for NYU's Kramer and became the first scoring champion in 11 years to win the crown without averaging 30 points a game.

Both are back in the battle this season, but the big surprise has been the point production of Newsome, two-time scoring champion in the Mid-American Conference, who wound up 18th on the list in 1962 with a 23.1 average.

Newsome has been scoring at such a prolific rate his average dropped to 31.8 Tuesday night when he scored 31 in Western Michigan's 92-89 victory over Notre Dame. It was only the second victory in six games for the Broncos.

But Newsome and Western Michigan have been playing some of the top teams in the country — Northwestern, Michigan State, Marquette, Loyola, Michigan and now Notre Dame. And Newsome has scored heavily against all.

Outstanding one-man shows also were turned in by Rick Barry, who made all 17 of his foul shots and collected 35 points in Miami of Florida's 95-83 victory over San Francisco, and by Marvin Mitchell, who hit 13 of 18 from the floor and scored 30 points as West Texas edged Western Kentucky 84-83.

Chuck Richards scored 35 points and hit for the winning basket with three seconds left as Syracuse edged Cornell 86-84 and Clemson also won with three seconds left, edging Virginia 53-52 on a final shot by Mike Bohonak.

In other games, Carroll Hooser clicked for 27 points in SMU's 97-75 triumph over Georgia Tech, Virginia Tech rode Howard Pardue's 20-point effort to a 81-75 victory over Georgia, Wisconsin crushed Gonzaga 115-71, Oklahoma State walloped Long Beach State 91-66, Texas Tech clipped Oklahoma 95-66, Princeton defeated Rutgers 79-50, Ohio U. downed St. John's, N.Y., 58-54 and Morehead beat Marshall 103-83.

In 1916, Souther Methodist led Rice by 3-0 but lost the football game, 46-3.

Johnson Given Big Poll Edge
NEW YORK (AP) — Out of every 100 persons polled, an average of 64 preferred President Johnson over the five leading possible Republican contenders in the 1964 presidential race, a Newsweek magazine poll showed today.
The 64-36 margin represented Johnson's lead over the combined average of the five Republicans.
The poll, conducted by Louis Harris & Associates, gave Johnson a 7-point jump in popularity over the past two weeks.

Less Fruit Eating
WASHINGTON (AP) — An average American eats 50 pounds less fresh fruit annually than his grandfather did half a century ago. A Department of Agriculture survey indicates that only the citrus fruits have gained in popularity during that time. On the other hand, there has been a boom in concentrated juice consumption.
